SOME INTERESTING WEDDINGS

Waring-Winburn
SAVANNAH—Christ Church was the scene of a very beautiful wedding Wednesday evening, when the marriage of Miss Susan Cole Winburn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Winburn, and Dr. Antonio Johnson Waring took place in the presence of a large gathering of interested friends.
The ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. Dr. H. H. Reese, bishop of Georgia, was followed by a reception at Mr. and Mrs. Winburn's home on East Thirty-first street.
The combination of pink and silver in the bride's dress made the wedding an unusually lovely one, and instead of bouquets they carried silver baskets filled with pink Killarney roses. Palms and white roses were used in the church decorations and at the house a profusion of pink and white roses made the rooms attractive.
The bridesmaids, Miss Mary Waring, immediately preceded the bride and her father, Mr. W. A. Winburn.
Dr. James J. Waring, of Denver, Colo., was the bride's best man, and Mrs. Waring left at midnight for the wedding journey, the bride wearing a becoming costume of dark blue broadcloth trimmed with fur and white.

Kilpatrick-Caruthers
WINDSOR, Ont.—One of the prettiest weddings of the winter season was that of Miss Ruth Caruthers, of Windsor, and Mr. Harry Kilpatrick, of Atlanta, which took place Thursday evening at the First Baptist church.
The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Purser, of West End, assisted by Rev. Dr. Faust, of Windsor.
The church was elaborately decorated with ferns and palms and immense baskets of white roses were placed on pedestals and along the altar rail. Just before the entrance of the bride's party Miss Rebie Upchurch sang "Because."
The wedding march was played by Mrs. MacPette and Mrs. Ambrose Bradley. The bride's party was led by the ushers, Mr. J. J. Wilson, Mr. G. A. Johns, Mr. J. T. Strange and Dr. C. B. Almond.
The attendants were Miss Lady Bredon and Miss Magness Freeman, bridesmaids; Miss Ruby Caruthers, maid of honor, and Mrs. P. A. Flanagan and Mrs. H. A. Caruthers, Jr., matrons of honor, and little Miss Mary Lamar Jackson, flower girl.
The bride entered on the arm of her father, and was met at the church door by the bridegroom and his best man, Mr. Hollis Kilpatrick.
A beautiful reception was given immediately after the ceremony, at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. R. L. Caruthers.
Mr. and Mrs. Kilpatrick left on the midnight train for Washington, New York and Canada. They will reside in Atlanta on their return.

McKinney-Marchman
THE ROCK—The marriage of Miss Carolyn Marchman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Marchman, and Mr. Douglas McKinney was a beautiful event of December 8 taking place at the Methodist church at 6 o'clock. Rev. Charles Marchman, of Atlanta, officiating.
The color scheme of green and pink was carried out in the beautiful decorations and gown of the bride.
Mrs. Harry Flint, of Atlanta, was the bride's matron of honor. The bridesmaids were Misses Dave Marchman, sister of the bride, Miss Ruby Stafford, of Barnesville; Miss Mattie Bell Ripley, of Atlanta; and Miss Grace Barron, of Thomaston.
Little Misses Josephine Marchman and Mary Sue Meredith were the flower girls.
Mr. Robert Hightower, of Thomaston, was the best man. Mr. Alton Jenkins, Mr. Ed Smith, Mr. C. L. Middlebrooks and Mr. William Collier were the ushers.
Miss Edith Lupton, of Atlanta, played the wedding march.
After the wedding Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Marchman entertained in honor of the bride's party.
Mr. and Mrs. McKinney will be at home at The Rock after returning from a short wedding trip.

Allen-Dunn
SOCIAL CIRCLE—A beautiful wedding of Wednesday afternoon was that of Miss Willie Mae Dunn and Mr. Bruce Allen, which took place at the home of the bride's parents. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Augustus Earnest.
Miss Leona Dunn was the bride's maid of honor, and Miss Marie King, of White Plains, was bridesmaid. Mr. Walter Wiley was best man, and Mr. Lewis Barrett, of Monroe, was groomsmen.
The six little ribbon bearers were Miss Barrett, Mary Nell Wiley, Isabel Dabney, Charlotte Wallace, Evelyn Almond and Sarah Stanton.
A reception following the ceremony, after which the bride and groom left for a short wedding trip.

Celloden-Social News
CELLODEN—The members of the Civic League met with Mrs. H. F. Fitzpatrick Tuesday afternoon.
Her, and Mrs. L. W. Browder and three other members, arrived here Saturday.
A very enjoyable affair of Thursday evening was an entertainment at the auditorium given by Mrs. J. T. Baker, of West Haven, Conn. Mrs. Baker, who after being introduced by Miss Amanda Pierce, the program was a musical number of the town and some of the young members of the town.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES

IN the annals of the Atlanta Woman's club several days stand out as particularly bright and important events of the club year. Special programs are always arranged for Federation day, Clives day, the day devoted to the discussion of Child Welfare and Kindergarten, and Appreciating the importance of federation. Mrs. Samuel Lumpkin, chairman of Federation will have Rev. John R. Atkinson, dean of St. Philip's cathedral, address the club Monday afternoon on co-operation, organization and federation. The address will follow the regular business program and will be the attractive feature of the afternoon. Dr. Atkinson has recently come to Atlanta and a treat in store for those interested in his work for better living, better citizenship and improvement in social, civic and educational institutions. The city federation is deeply interested in the progress of the sale of Red Cross Christmas seals which commenced Thursday and will continue through several days of the week, all organizations in the city lending their hearty support and co-operation in the movement. Of much interest in this connection will be the report to be given by the chairman, Mrs. Hugh Willett, on the sale in different parts of the city and outline of plans for the week.

THE approaching merry Yuletide is heralded by news of the return of the college set for the holidays. Many of the girls are planning to bring attractive visitors and with each day new dates are being added to the social calendar. Parties of every kind are being arranged, including costume parties, Christmas masquerades, luncheons and informal teas. Open house will be kept at the chapter homes of the various fraternities and the informal dances each evening at the hospitable chapter homes will add greatly to the enjoyment of the bright season. A number of the college romances will arrive the latter part of the week, still others returning the early part of the next week. Among those who are expected in the next few days are Miss Isabelle Amorous, from St. Genevieve's convent, in Asheville; Miss Elizabeth Tuller, from the Woman's college in Ohio; Miss Gladys Byrd, from the Castle on the Hudson; Miss Marjaret McCarty, Miss Louise King, Miss Janet Hatcher, Miss Nell Choate and Miss Grace Bloodworth, from Hollins college; Miss Maud Cobb, Miss Nellie Dodd and Miss Randolph Divine, from St. Mary's, in Raleigh; Miss Laura Sawtell from Randolph-Macon college; Miss Annie Winslow Bates, Miss Frances Broyles, Miss Lillian Mitchell, Miss Mary McCall and Miss McCall, from Lucy Cobb; Miss Dodo White, from Sophie Newcomb, in New Orleans; Miss Mary Brown, from Vassar, and Miss Eloise Robinson, from Notre Dame.

Mrs. Sawtell to Entertain for Visitor

Miss Laura Sawtell will entertain at an informal dancing party Wednesday evening, December 30, at her home at Brookwood, in honor of Miss Martha Tour, of Durham, N. C., who will be her guest during the holidays.

Mrs. McGeehe to Entertain for Miss Swift

Mrs. Charles C. McGeehe will entertain at a bridge luncheon Tuesday, at her home on Juniper street, in honor of Miss Lillian Swift, of Columbus, the guest of Miss Patty McGeehe. The guests will include the season's debutantes.

Our Display of Diamond Jewelry Is Superbly Brilliant

The mere shape of these diamond set pieces enraptures. One wonders at the resourcefulness of the designer to conceive such choice productions.

But it is when these designs are mounted with gleaming gems that one is captivated, when every facet is flashing and sparkling.

DECEMBER BRIDE

MRS. HARRIS BROWN.
Formerly Miss Marian Donovan whose wedding was a beautiful event of the past week in Locust Grove. A number from Atlanta attended the marriage ceremony.

Embroidery Display and Reception
The beautiful embroidery display presented by the Atlanta Sewing Society on Thursday afternoon and evening, was held at the home of Mrs. Fyburn.
The following were awarded prizes for their beautiful needlework: Mrs. Roberts, Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. J. M. Martin, Mrs. A. W. Martin, Mrs. Bell, Mrs. Lambrough, Mrs. Pierce, Mrs. Vortness, Mrs. Thomas, Mrs. Fowler, Mrs. Pryor, Mrs. Reed, Mrs. Prim, Mrs. Thrasher, Mrs. Mays and Mrs. Cunningham.

Interesting Suffrage Meeting
The suffrage rally held by the Atlanta Suffrage association on Tuesday evening at the Hotel Atlanta was a most successful and enthusiastic one.
In an eloquent address, Dr. Caleb Miller pointed out the need of woman's influence in the politics of today, and predicted an early victory for woman suffrage in Georgia.

Mrs. Henry Grady Ball, of the Atlanta Law school, defended the justice of woman's suffrage.
Miss M. L. McLaughlin, of Louisville, Ky., spoke of the problem confronting Atlanta of having numbers of men and women out of work during the winter months.
The "One Cent" quartet of the Central Baptist church furnished delightful music for the evening.

Important Meeting
Miss Frances, president of the Burroughs' Nature club, will talk on "Birds" at the regular meeting of the Parent-Teacher association of Forest avenue school on Thursday, December 17, at 3 p. m.
Members are requested to manifest their interest in the welfare of the pupils by attending this last meeting of 1914, as matters of importance are to be discussed. A social hour will follow, which refreshments are to be served.

Suffrage Musical
Tuesday evening the Atlanta Musical Association will hold a musical at the residence of Mrs. Ada T. Ball, 33 Irving street. This is the first of a series of musicals the association is planning to hold in different parts of the city.

Mrs. Ball has arranged a delightful program of vocal and instrumental music, readings and short suffrage speeches. Those interested in woman suffrage are invited to attend.

Club Entertained
Miss Mary Wallace was hostess on Wednesday evening to the members of the Johnnie Belle Duncan, Miss Pearl Allen, Miss Helen Allen, Miss Helen Allen, Miss Eva Warwick, Miss Mary Wallace, Mr. Paul Davis, Mr. Harry Ernest, Mr. Albert Walden, Mr. Wilson Miner, Mr. Grady Bradburn, Mr. Joe Shaffer, Mr. Arthur Allen, Mr. Harry Wallace, Mr. and Mrs. The next meeting will be held at the home of Miss Bertha Allen, on Monday evening.

Buy With the Christmas Spirit.

J. P. ALLEN & COMPANY

These two grand lots of Suits and Coats are condensed into a one-price sale which is figured lower than you would expect to pay for them at the end of the winter.

The Suits include Serges, Gabardines, Mixtures, Cloths and French Serges, all silk lined; the tailoring is the best, and the colors include black, navy, green, browns and plenty of blues—three-quarter, full length and a few short Coat Suits included velvet, button, braid and self-trimmed. Skirts, are tunic, yoke and flare styles—high girdles.

The Coats include Vibelines, Diagonals, Mixtures, Cheviots, Chinchillas and Boucles; all are cut on the latest models, most all are half-silk lined, new sleeves, new collars, new flare effects, trimmed sleeves, deep cuffs and braid finish—all colors and mixtures.

This line of Suits and Coats does not consist of a lot of stragglers or left-overs; nearly all are entirely new, and the price quoted means a suit or coat for you when most needed, or an ideal gift in time for Xmas, at a price which will satisfy the most economical impulse.

Patten Wedding Plans

Mrs. John A. Patten has written her invitations to the marriage of her daughter, Charlotte, to Mr. Alexander B. Patten, which will take place in the Methodist church December 19th. The bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Patten, are one of the loveliest and most popular families in the city. She has been immensely popular since her debut a year ago, and has the best of general interest. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Patten. The groom is the son of Bishop Patten of the diocese of South Carolina. The ceremony will be beautiful in the church of the bride, will be held at 10 o'clock, and Mr. Silas Williams will be the officiating minister. The bridesmaids will be Miss Elizabeth Allen, Miss Dorothy Patten, Miss Margaret Allen, Miss Margaret Andrews. The groomsmen will be the bride's brothers, Mankie Patten, John A. Patten, Jr., and Philip Patten. The ushers will be Silas McEwen, of the South Carolina, of Memphis; Lupton, Edward Whiteside, Charleston; Frank Allen, Jr., Phillips; and Edward Finley—Chattanooga.

Program for Meeting
The John Jackson chapter, Children of the Confederacy, will hold their regular meeting Friday at 3:30 Peachtree street, at 2:30 in the afternoon. The short program will be given, followed by an interesting Christmas entertainment. A prize is offered to the one who gives the most correct answer to the question, "Give three important reasons why the southern states seceded." Christmas cards showing a faithful grouping of the Confederate soldiers will be distributed.

Program for Meeting
The Parent-Teacher association of the Lee Street school will hold its next meeting Tuesday afternoon, December 15th, at 2 o'clock, at the school house. Mrs. Patten will give a talk on the respective kind of work being done at the Lee Street school, of which she is principal. She will tell of the some they are having with their open school rooms. All interested are invited.

Story of Uncle Remus

his birthday of Joel Chandler Harris was celebrated with interesting exercises Wednesday in many parts of the city, all of them expressing the love and tender remembrance in which the gifted Georgian is held in his home. The "Wren's Nest" was the scene of delightful hospitality in the afternoon, when the members of the association were gathered to witness the presentation of a plaque of wrought bronze which is the work of Roger Noole Burnham, and which was unveiled by Mrs. Joel Chandler Harris. Dr. A. McDu. Wilson, the president of the Uncle Remus Memorial association, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. J. H. and Mrs. J. H. and advised the guests in the entertainment of many guests at the informal social which was such a pleasant event.

The supper was given at the Piedmont hotel Thursday afternoon and evening. Mrs. Edward M. Horine and her sister Mrs. Lee Worsham, in honor of Miss Mal Horine, who is an attractive member of the season.

The affair was well held in the ball room. Festoons of wild smilax came from the ceiling and entwined the pillars down the length of the large hall. The walls were decorated with palms and holly wreaths brilliant with red berries. The guests were caught at the ton of the show by the decorations. The music was ably with flowing laws and the mantle was backed with palms and the top finished with a frieze overhanging quantities of crimson poinsettias. A white Christmas flower was used as a centerpiece to cover the tables placed in the leaden hall. "The Woman of Dixie," the manuscript was made at the time of the meeting of the Alabama Federation of Women's clubs that the annual convention of the Alabama Federation of club women for the best essay writing during the year. Mrs. J. C. Hardman, of the Alabama Federation of club women, was the winner of the prize. Her story, "The Woman of Dixie," showed that she had a good knowledge of the subject. She pointed out how all the things in the woman's world had changed since the time of the Civil War up to the standing of the southern woman today. The manuscript was covered with heavy paper, on which she had written the story. She was also displaying a miniature of a woman of the old south. Mrs. Irwin Creighton, of the Alabama Federation of club women, held up the paper showing that it was as beautiful as it was good. The story was written by Mrs. Irwin Creighton and for the Penelon club. Mrs. J. C. Hardman, who is a valued member of the Alabama Federation of club women, is being congratulated on her success.

TREASURES HIDDEN IN RIVER
There have been many reports since the Germans invaded Belgium regarding the planting of art treasures in the country. Art treasures were taken for safekeeping in the river Scheldt, according to a person who enjoyed the confidence of Belgian officials, a number of masterpieces were hidden in the river Scheldt in waterproof containers before the city was taken by the Germans. The rumor that Rubens' "Descent from the Cross" and other masterpieces, was at the bottom of the Scheldt.

It was asserted, were billeted in some of the art galleries. It had been believed that many families had been brought to safety and for safekeeping.

Decembe

Oh, holly branch and mistletoe
And Christmas chimes where'er we go
And stockings pinned up in a row—
These are thy gifts December!
And if the year has made thee old
And silvered all thy locks or gold
Thy heart has never been a-cold
Or known a fading ember,
The whole world is a Christmas tree
And stars its many candles be.
Oh, sing a carol joyfully
The year's great feast in keeping,
For once upon a December night
An angel held a candle bright
And led three wise men by its light
To where a child was sleeping.

S. I. A. A. Tries Out New Scheme for Enforcing One-Year Residence Rule

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) LEXINGTON, Ky., Dec. 12.—The Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association is trying out a new scheme for enforcing a one-year residence rule. The scheme is designed to prevent players from moving from one college to another in the middle of a season. The association has announced that it will enforce this rule starting next season.

Carlin Donahue Tells of Losses to His Eleven

Eight Men Who Played This Year Are Through, Each Has Played Four Years, Though None Were Regulars for the Entire Season

BY MIKE DONAHUE (Athens Coach.) AUBURN, Ala., Dec. 12.—Auburn's last game of the season of 1914 against the Carlisle Indians was also the last game for a number of football warriors who have made history under the colors of the Orange and Blue. Most of these have played their time out, but under the Auburn system this does not mean that they have played four full years. Entering college unacquainted with the gentle art of pigskin chasing, they played with the scrub team a year to get introduced to football. If they are promising for the next year or two they are put into a team of an occasional game to give them seasoning and a taste of the real thing. For the next couple of years they may be regulars, and two or three will be of more of the S. I. A. A. games and were far below their usual form in the other games because of injuries. So it left really only two regulars of the team of the year before last, and still Auburn had a successful season. Of those who have played their time out, Carlin Donahue is the one that has played a regular position for four years. After scrubbing for a year he stepped into a regular position in 1911, and has been an all-southern selection practically three years. Thigpen, after scrubbing two years, was an all-southern selection his first regular year in 1912. He was also one of the most guards ever seen in the south.

Feds Will Meet To Split Spoils

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—Robert Ward, vice president of the Federal League, announced today that a meeting of the league's executive committee will be held in Chicago, December 16, to decide on the best way to split the spoils of the league.

Ward denied that action was taken at the meeting to split the spoils. He said that the meeting was held to discuss the league's future. He said that the league was in a difficult financial position and that the meeting was held to discuss ways to improve the league's finances. He said that the league was not in a position to split the spoils.

Tech Will Have No Basketball Team This Year

Athletic Committee Decides to Abolish Game as a Major Sport—More Taken in Interest of Class Work. Class Term Will Be Organized.

The Tech Jackies will have no varsity basketball team this season, and unless the athletic committee changes its views on the matter it is not likely that the game will again be recognized as a major sport again, at least for several years to come. This action was taken at a meeting of the committee a few days ago, and the announcement has just been made public. This action has been taken in conformity with the practice of the varsity rule, which is in effect at Tech, and it is not generally understood that the nature of the class room and shop work at Tech must be taken into consideration in these departments of the collegiate work, and in order for the understanding in these departments to get the necessary time for practice they must be excused by the faculty under a special dispensation. This means, of course, that where a student plays for the football team, he must necessarily be excused from certain work for a greater part of the year. This is a heavy burden to place on his class room work, and the athletic committee feels that it is too big a proposition to place up to the faculty. Hence since it was deemed best to cut out one of the three, basketball was selected.

New League Has Grabbed Eight Brilliant Players From Organized Ranks Since October

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 12.—Nine major league players, including three of the toppest of top liners, have deserted or been lured from the ranks of the organized ranks since the 1914 season closed in October. Here is the complete list: Ray Chapman, pitcher, from Washington (A. L.) to Chicago; Eddie Plank, pitcher, from Philadelphia (A. L.) to St. Louis; Edie Connelly, infielder, from Pittsburgh (A. FEDS WRECKED 1914 NAPS.
The moral effect of the Fed raids on the Nap club last season, together with the desertion of Cy Falkenberg and the switching about of pitchers Kahler and Blanding who were induced to return to the Nap club after being in-

Nap players, with perhaps the exception of Doc Johnson, who is said to have been approached by the Chifeds, probably will stick to the team. Many of the players are youngsters who are signed to contracts whose terms are dictated. The veterans also sized contracts which have been pronounced ironclad.

If it is true that Ray Collins has deserted the Red Sox the fight for that position is likely to prove more exciting than it has for some time, with the Detroit Tigers being in the running.

The Nabs may not turn out to be a first division club, but if the young players Manager Birmingham depends upon to lead his team out of the wilderness deliver the goods, Cleveland may have a first division contender.

NATIONAL HARD HIT.
The desertion of Walter Johnson means that the Washington club has lost fully one-fourth of its playing strength. Washington won many games without the help of Johnson last season and the season before, but the mere fact that Johnson was on the job and able to stop almost any losing streak had a moral effect on the club that should not be ignored.

A drought and a scarcity of corn compelled many farmers engaged in this business, to sell their cattle before the animals had been properly fattened. But the great increase in the price of corn has put this business upon a more profitable basis than ever, and there is no doubt but that all of the cattle produced on the ranges will be fattened on farms.

DETECTIVES NOW BELIEVE YOUNG WIFE WAS STOLEN

Nation-Wide Search Made for Mrs. Walter Breck, of East Orange, N. J.

Detectives who have been trying to solve the mysterious disappearance of Mrs. Helen Meeker Breck, of East Orange, N. J., who dropped from sight
December 4, after bidding her husband, Walter, good-by as he started for his office, have discarded the theory of suicide and are working on the belief that the young matron was kidnapped.

A substantial reward has been offered by the husband for any information which will lead to the recovery of his wife. Boy Scouts have aided in the hunt, which was made throughout the Orange section of New Jersey. The woman had been searched and handed over to the authorities to make certain that the woman's body is not in the vicinity where she was last seen.

On the morning of her disappearance she accompanied her husband to the railroad station, where he took the 8 o'clock train for New York. Mrs. Breck kissed him good-by and he was going home, but would stop at the grocery on the way. Relatives who were visiting the Brecks became worried when she did not return after several hours, and telephoned Mr. Breck in Manhattan. Investigation showed she had not stopped at the grocery, and no one was found who had seen her from the moment her husband boarded the train.

W. H. Truesdale, president of the Lackawanna railroad, has become so interested in the case that he has furnished all the road's trainmen with a photograph and description of the missing woman.

Mrs. Breck's complete description, which has been sent broadcast, is as follows:

Height, five feet seven inches;
weight, 117 pounds; brown hair, slightly tinged with gray; age, thirty-five years; blue eyes; slightly pimpled complexion; slightly prominent upper teeth. She was dressed in a gray-blue silk dress, black fur collar, blue plush hat, bell crown with a rolling brim and sleeves. She was wearing ring, earrings, "W. W. B. to H. C. M."

At first some reliance was placed on the idea that Mrs. Breck might have committed suicide. At times she suffered from nervousness and melancholia, but the fruitless search of the countrywide seems to have convinced the detectives that they were following the wrong scent.

Many New York and New Jersey bankers have become personally interested in the case through their acquaintance with Mrs. Breck's father, the late George Meeker, who up to the time of his death was cashier of the National City bank. Several are conducting independent investigations in the hope of finding a clue.

NEW BOND CLERK ACTS IN ADVISORY CAPACITY
J. Walter LeCraw, Under Georgia Law, Cannot Approve Any Bonds

J. Walter LeCraw, appointed bond clerk Saturday under agreement between Sheriff C. W. Mangum, Solicitor
Hugh M. Dorsey and Arnold Broyles, clerk of courts, is to serve purely as an investigator and in an advisory capacity.

Mr. LeCraw, under the Georgia law, cannot approve any bonds. This power is left to the sheriff, his deputies, or a judge of the superior court.
The agreement under which he was appointed is self-explanatory, as follows:

"Under the distinct agreement that the position of bond clerk carries with it no official authority, but merely an advisory capacity in furnishing information to the deputy sheriff as to bondsmen, as agreed upon between Arnold Broyles, C. W. Mangum and Hugh M. Dorsey, under date of December 1, 1914, the selection of J. Walter LeCraw is made for the position of bond clerk, to serve only so long as his services are acceptable to C. W.
Mangum, Arnold Broyles and Hugh M.
Dorsey."

COUPLE FOOLS FRIENDS ABOUT MARRIAGE DATE
Miss Marie Donaldson and L.
M. Calvert Were Married
Six Weeks Ago

A month and a half is long enough to keep your speculating friends in ignorance of your marriage; at least, this is the decision reached by L. M. Calvert of 266 Sawson street, and Mrs. Calvert, who was Miss Marie Donaldson, of Clayton, Ga.

Mr. Calvert called up The Journal
Saturday to announce that on October 24 he and Miss Donaldson, who is supposed to be visiting in the city, had been married at the residence of two friends to the residence of the minister and the friends had been sworn to secrecy.

"Why the secrecy?" he was asked.
"Well, we have a lot of friends at Clayton," said Calvert, "who have been speculating a great deal about the time we would be married, and most of them had used the date for Christmas. We decided to fool them about the date, and I think we have."

Has a Cure
For Pellagra

Parrie Nichols, Laurel, Miss., writes:
"Someday when I did not obtain my remedy when I did I would not have lived much longer. I am glad you discovered this wonderful remedy that will cure Pellagra. When I began taking Baugh's Pellagra Remedy my weight was 60-odd pounds; now it is 90-odd. I would like to have this published and sent to sufferers of Pellagra."

This is published at her request. If you suffer from Pellagra, or know of anyone who suffers from Pellagra, it is your duty to consult the resourceful Baugh, who has fought and conquered the dreaded malady right in the Pel-lagra Belt of Alabama.

The symptoms, hands red like sunburn, skin peeling off, sore mouth, the tongue, throat and tongue flaming red with much mucus and choking, indigestion and nausea, either diarrhea or constipation.

There is hope. If you have Pellagra you can be cured by Baugh's Pellagra Remedy. Get big free book on Pellagra.

Weird Cries Guide Cops to Woods and Goat-Getter's Loot

The mystery of the "Goat-getter" who has been harassing Atlanta for the past week, has been further complicated by the recovery of part of his prey, a well-wedded nanny, under weird and wonderous circumstances.

The nanny is now at police headquarters until she is identified as one of the pair which was lifted Thursday and Friday nights; but the identity of the riever who "copped" her is still swathed in secrecy.

More, in losing the nanny, he appears to have obtained a still stronger hold on the official angers of the Atlanta police force. Witness, the tale of the recovery.

In the silent hour just before darkness
thudded early Saturday morning, Patrolmen McDaniel and Robinson, rounded their beat, a lonely spot on the outskirts of the city, far to the east where Decatur street loses itself in open country.

Suddenly out of the night came a cry.
The two patrolmen swore that it was a human voice, shrieking "Murder! murder! Help! O Help!" It appeared to come out of a dark neck of trees known as Hulsey's Woods.

Drawing their revolvers, the patrolmen crashed toward the scene of the tragedy. They found the scene, they identified the cries, but no sign of man or woman or child, no hint of tragedy could they discover. A nanny goat tied to a brush, whimpering loud and pitiful whimpers.

LANARK-ON-THE-GULF IS REAL HUNTER'S RETREAT

A hunter's retreat, a fisherman's paradise and a tourist's nest Mediterranean, are some of the descriptions given to Lanark-on-the-Gulf, Fla., in a most folder which has just been issued by C. J.
Lanark, traffic manager of the Georgia,
Florida and Alabama railroad.

It is understood that this is a part of the "Sed America First" propaganda the railroads of the south have started to draw tourists to this section. The Lanark folder contains much information for the hunter or fisher.

COUNTY OFFICER BAKER PRAISED FOR BRAVE ACT

Policeman Who Saved Negro Commended by Chairman of County Board

Tull C. Waters, retiring chairman of the Fulton county board of commissioners, has written to Chief George Mathieson, of the county police, a letter commending Policeman L. M. Baker for saving a negro workman who was in danger of death when a sewer ditch on Georgia avenue near Bass street caved in December 1.

Officer Baker, who was passing on a motorcycle, stopped, and with the assistance of a negro, dug away a pile of dirt in time to save the man, who had been covered by several feet of earth. While digging the officer stood on the caving ditch, risking his own life.

Waters highly commends Policeman Baker for the humane act.

WAR TAX STAMPS MAY BE BOUGHT AND RESOLD Discount of One Per Cent Al- lowed on Orders of $100 or More

For the convenience of the general public, Collector of Internal Revenue, A. O. Halsey, who has just returned from his tour of duty in Europe, has it is legitimate, for any banker, postmaster, business man or any other person to purchase war tax stamps and sell them.

A discount of 1 per cent is allowed on orders of $100 or more, and Mr.
Halsey hopes that in every town some one will take advantage of the law to handle the stamps, thus benefiting themselves by the commission and aiding the government to spread their sale.

FOR SWOLLEN ANKLES OR EYELIDS

Try Buchu Mixed With Juniper, Best for Kidney or Back Pains and Swellings.

Swollen eyelids or ankles, twinges or back pains in the region of kidneys, spots before the eyes, yellow skin,
shortness of breath, dizziness, sleepless nights. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness,
constipation, indigestion, sleeplessness,
bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys. Get from any reliable drug store a 14-oz. bottle of Stuart's Buchu and Juniper Compound. Take a tablespoonful after each meal. Drink plenty of water. Stop eating sugar or sweets.
In a day or so your kidneys and bladder will act fine and natural. The symptoms disappear like magic, for Stuart's Buchu and Juniper Compound acts quickly on the kidneys and bladder, strengthens the system and drains all impurities from the kidneys. You then quickly regain your buoyancy and ambition, the skin takes on the red hue of pure, rich blood. All swellings in and about the face cease to worry.
Ankles or eyelids pass away. Back pains you.—(Adv.)

resting the grass. It is necessary that the grass be cut when it is green and in sap in order that it may retain its color. The grass is cured and packed in bales and shipped to our factory where it is put through various machines for the purpose of cleaning and combing it out and getting it ready to be woven into small rope strands. These strands are then used as the wool in the weave of carpets and rugs. The warp is of cotton. We use annually fifteen thousand tons of wiregrass and close to two million pounds of cotton warp."

"I know no other way of accounting for the increased sale of fireworks in hard times except by the fact that people want to get rid of the blues and celebrate with gun powder. I presume that this is a correct psychological explanation. There are also many very concrete business reasons; among these may be mentioned the fact that fireworks are sold by the retailer on credit at a good profit. In good times quite a large percentage of the merchants are too busy with other things to take on the fireworks trade, which lasts for a comparatively short time, but in slow times they are glad to handle this line as a trade booster and to get the ready cash it affords. We have seen that more of our retailers than ever before are discounting their bills; many of them to whom we sell on open account reply at once with cash payments and secure the discount.

Many Travelers Have Been Forced to Forego Country
Trips--Are Greater Good Roads Boosters Now Than Ever Before

Traveling men everywhere are known as boosters of good roads. Within the past few weeks Georgia travelers have become greater boosters of good roads than ever. The reason does not arise from the fact that the recent good roads congress was held in Atlanta and was productive of many fine speeches and large enthusiasm on the subject of improved highways, but it is more immediate and more personal.

For the past month or more there have been rains and rains, and mists, and then rains, and then some mists. This has resulted in softening all the roads, through which the wheels have penetrated to their hubs, where the roadway has been without pavement until the common dirt roads are now practically impassable.

All traveling salesmen, and especially the travelers for wholesale grocers, make many country trips. Those who do not regularly make sales rounds in country districts are accustomed to making drives for the purpose of catching trains and saving time by returning to Atlanta or continuing their trip on a different road from that on which they left Atlanta. During the past week many of the travelers have been compelled to postpone their trips in the country, due to the fearful condition of the union.

"I have just been talking to some of our salesmen over the long distance phone," said E. M. Hudson, of McCord-Stewart company, "and they tell me that the extended rainy spell has caused the roads to be in such a condition that they have given up parts of their sales rounds in the country districts. They are all now shouting for good roads and for good roads as soon as they can be built. The travelers are a nuisance."

P. S. Brownlee, popular traveler of the E. L. Adams company, was one of the victims of the bad roads caused by the recent rainy spell. In making one of his cross-country trips recently in an automobile, Mr. Brownlee became stuck in the mud and it was only after considerable effort that he was able to get out.

"The dirt roads have been in very bad condition, due to the heavy rains," said W. Y. Bailey, of Fain & Stamps. "I do not make any country trips myself, but from what I have heard the roadways have been in a mucky condition, though they have much improved since the fall of the machine. These roads first of the week. They "have now become, in a measure, packed down and travel over them is now much better than heretofore."

JUVENILE AUTO CONTEST ATTRACTS MUCH INTEREST AS CLOSING DATE DRAWS NEAR

Atlanta Baking Company Offers Three Prizes to Boys and Girls Saving Largest Number of "Milk Maid" Labels

Great interest is now being manifested in the juvenile automobile contest of the Atlanta Baking Company, as the time for the close of the contest draws near. The company is offering three prizes to the boys or girls who present them the largest number of labels from loaves of their Milk Maid bread on December 23. The first prize is a juvenile automobile, an exact replica in every respect of a real automobile.

RAINY SEASON BRINGS BIG TARPULIN SALE

Atlanta Tent and Awning Co. Has Rush Sales of "Never-Leak" Tarpaulins.

The recent rainy season brought the Atlanta Tent and Awning company a decided increase in their sales of "Never-Leak" tarpaulins, which are used for protecting stored cotton. The demand for tarpaulins came generally from all sections of the cotton states, from merchants, farmers and warehousemen.

The tarpaulins are large water-proof coverings for the purpose of protecting a large number of cotton bales stored together during the winter months. The company expects a continued good business throughout the winter on their tarpaulins. This is due to the fact there is much cotton being held over this year and to the fact that there were not enough warehouses in existence to accommodate all of the cotton held. The tarpaulins permit each person to have his own warehouse at comparatively light expense.

The following travelers of the Hirschberg company are in for the Christmas holidays: Sam Saltzman, Henry D. Thompson, Max Samuels, Mack Hirschberg, Will C. Tennant and S. C. Hightower.

The "last" at Pain & Stamps for the week end were W. T. Bailey, S. E. Smith and J. C. Owens. The rest of the travelers thought it best not to come into headquarters for the regularity of the monthly sale conference but to devote the time Saturday to hustling for Christmas orders. The city salesmen and the travelers who were in held an informal meeting and discussed the Christmas business and the general outlook.

COUNCIL 505 TO HOLD IMPORTANT MEETING

The regular meeting of U. C. T. Council 505, will be held on Saturday night, December 19, in the K. P. hall in the Kiser building. Many matters of importance will be brought up for discussion and a full attendance is desired. W. G. Moore, senior counselor, states that he wishes every member to be present. Matters pertaining to the recent show given by the council will be closed up and other new business of an urgent character will be presented to the membership.

GIRLS CLUB SELLS "WHITE LILY" FLOUR FOR CHARITY

The J. Allen Smith company, of Knoxville, Tenn., makers of White Lily flour, have donated 3,000 miniature sacks of White Lily flour to the Inman Park Girls' club to be sold and the proceeds devoted to charity. The flour is loaded on a big truck and is artistically arranged. The members of the girls' club accompany it through the residence streets, selling the miniature sacks. The White Lily flour is represented in Atlanta by R. W. Cox, and E. L. Adams company are the sole distributors here.

"Help Us Not To Hurt You"

All over the country the "Safety First" idea is being hammered in. In St. Louis the street cars recently carried big posters on their fenders with the appeal:

"HELP US NOT TO HURT YOU."

And inside the cars you'd find in flaming signs:

"SAFETY FIRST MEANS A LOT TO YOU."

These slogans are part of the campaign to make folks look out for Number One.

Looks as if people ought not to need reminding and admonition on these lines. But they do.

They take wild chances.

And nearly always the odds are against them.

They miscalculate. And that's where they fall down.

Same way in business. You'd think the average man in business would be busy looking out for Number One.

But he, too, has a way of taking chances that are not good for him.

He just simply overlooks the intimate inter-dependence of his OWN business with that of other people.

He fails to figure in that what hurts other folks sometimes is mighty bad for himself as well.

Like this:

Local dealers hurt themselves when they buy goods from manufacturers who run factories a thousand miles from home while local manufacturers are putting out equal or better stuffs from local factories.

They may argue, these dealers, that they can do this with perfect safety to themselves.

Can they?

When they won't or don't patronize local manufacturers, here's what they are doing:

They are helping to suppress local industries.

They are helping to cut down the number of workmen who could be drawing wages from these factories.

They are reducing the number of their own prospective customers.

Oh, no—these economic aspects of the proposition don't appeal to the average dealer. They are too remote—too abstract.

But when you really think it out, you see where the meat of the thing is.

"HELP US NOT TO HURT YOU."

Why hurt yourself? What's the use? You need more business. You want your town to develop and boom and grow.

Whatever brings these things to pass HELPS YOU.

Support the industries of your town and you are putting your shoulder to the wheel of progress.

Buy goods produced at home and you have more people to buy what you have to sell.

Use the brands we make and HELP YOURSELF.

"HELP US NOT TO HURT YOU."

The way to do it is to send us your orders—we'll take care of you—good care.

Safety first.

Two Beautiful Dolls

You Will Find in Jacobs' Holiday Stock

IN FACT, there is not another Doll Display in Atlanta equal to Jacobs'. We have brought many thousands of dolls from all over the world and assembled them here in our Main Store, and the festival is now at its height, a brilliant, a gorgeous scene.

As in past seasons, again we are giving our patrons the best doll values procurable in this state, or throughout the South.

No. 1.—Dearie—handsome bisque doll with a remarkably beautiful face and fine, expressive eyes; both blondes and brunettes; natural, curly wig; closing eyes; jointed throughout; 24 inches tall; ribbon and lace trimmed slip, lace stockings, slippers. A very handsome doll that would cost you $1.50 or more elsewhere.

Our Special Price, $1.00

No. 2.—Pansy—Bisque of a finer grade, also 24 inches. She has long, natural curly hair, light or dark, closing eyes, real hair, eyebrows and long, thick, beautiful lashes. The Angel Child is a wonderful and lovable doll and you cannot duplicate her elsewhere under $2.00. Get one before they are sold out at Our Special Price, $1.50 should be sent to us now to escape the unavoidable delays in transit later on. We provide strong safety containers for all dolls shipped out of town.

Mail Orders for Dolls

POOR KIDS PUT THEIR TRUST IN ATLANTA FOR BIG CHRISTMAS DINNER

Two Little Kiddies Who Trust Atlanta for Christmas Dinner. On the left, Ola Burgess, who hasn't any hands; on the right, Ruth Louise Prince, holding the one and only doll in the children's ward of the Volunteers of America.

Little Ola Burgess has no left arm at all; she has but two good fingers on her right; but she is going to eat a hearty Christmas dinner—provided she can get it in Atlanta.
She sat on the cold front steps of the Baptist Tabernacle the other morning, with Ruth Louise Prince, whose blue eyes are always watery, even when she smiles, and Eddie Dink, who wears a ragged little blue suit of Buster Brown make and never leaves off shivering.
Some frost whitened the sidewalk from the freeze of the night, and two tattered boys were scraping a wooden sled across it. The rusty runners scratched across the ice as they dragged the wooden sled to the top of the slope and down again.
Inside the Tabernacle a wan gas burner sputtered in futile effort to warm the windy halls. An old woman with a white bandage bound across her eyes, sat by the stove and rocked a twelve-year-old baby. She crooned a cracked melody as she swayed to and fro. The name of the song was "While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks by Night."
A big sign stretched across the front of the building. It read: "Volunteers of America: Annual Xmas Dinner to Atlanta's Poor." The sign shivered, too, when the cold breath of the wind struck it.
Ola, Ruth Louise and Eddie discussed the sign and its meaning. They liked the bright red letters and the holly leaf that gleamed in one corner where the pale sun crept out of the smoke above the city.
"It's pretty," said Ruth Louise, "and means turkey and cranberry and little pickles with black sticks in 'em."
"And brand and gravy and plenty of butter," added Ola.
"And pie," said Eddie.
They sighed—deep, long, delicious sighs. And then Ruth Louise clutched at the damp white stockings which she pulled off her thin legs, and Ola hunched her armless shoulders into a solid jacket, and Eddie shivered and shook some more. But the light in their eyes was lovely.
Three little cold kiddies, they are, but they are as sure as they are ill-clothed and hungry, that on Christmas day at 1 o'clock they will eat their fill of goodies. They have built their hope on Atlanta's generosity, they regard it as a sort of Providence which can never fail them, a substantial Santa Claus, who never yet has fallen short of their utter childlike confidence.
Will Atlanta suffer that simple trust

The One Great Gift for the Entire Family

A Piano, Inner Player or Victrola

LET THIS SEASON'S REMEMBRANCE BE ONE OF PERMANENT VALUE—A GIFT that is useful as well as beautiful and one that educates as well as entertains. A generation ago, prudent buyers bought for their wives and children well-chosen pianos. Some of these very gifts are in your home today—you call them heirlooms. How infinitely more practical were such purchases than the myriad of unremembered trifles long since lost or destroyed.

THE SMALL PAYMENT you make now—this week, on a well built, serviceable instrument, will bring into your home an enduring gift for the entire household—and one which may be passed down to future generations. Such a purchase made at our store is a guaranteed investment, and then to be shattered? Three little kiddies, with twice a hundred more just like them, with the old women, with derelict men and tired girls, scattered in the city's forgotten spots, they look to Atlanta's good citizens to make their Christmas happy.

PLANS ARE MADE

The plans have been made, but it remains for the good folks of the city to complete them. The dinner is to be held at 1 o'clock Christmas day in the convention hall of the Old Tabernacle. Already Mrs. Emma Neal Douglas and Mrs. Frank Ellis have donated twenty-five plump turkeys, already Mrs. J. M. High has given 250 pounds of sugar and twenty-five gallons of cranberries, already the potatoes and the corn and the little pickles have begun to come into headquarters.

But they want more; they want this thing done right; they want no little Ola or Ruth Louise to go hungry and starved on a bright Christmas morning.

Mrs. W. S. Witham, Mrs. Douglas, Mrs. Ellis, Mrs. West Bellows and a score or more of other ladies have pledged their word to the Volunteers that the food and the Christmas cheer shall not be lacking.

DO YOU SUFFER FROM BACKACHE?

When your kidneys are weak and torpid they do not properly perform their function: your back aches and you do not feel like doing much of anything. You are likely to be despondent and to borrow trouble, just as if you hadn't enough already. Don't be a victim any longer.

The old reliable medicine, Hood's Sarsaparilla, gives strength and tone to the kidneys and builds up the whole system.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is a peculiar combination of roots, barks and herbs. No other medicine acts like it, because no other medicine has the same formula or ingredients. Accept no substitute, but insist on having Hood's, and get it today.—(Adv.)

$75,000 ASSURED SOON FOR WORK ON LAKEWOOD FAIR

Appropriation Made by Board of Fulton County Commissioners

Advocate of the proposed Southeastern Fair at Lakewood are enthusiastic over the action Saturday of the board of county commissioners, who agreed to appropriate, near the first of the year, the sum of $75,000, its share of the $250,000 necessary to make the fair one which will be a credit to Atlanta and the south and draw thousands of visitors to the city.

The action of the county board practically means that $75,000 in cash is on hand for the project. While this year's commission does not vote, the money out of the 1914 treasury, all incoming commissioners, were present at the meeting and informally voted with the old commissioners for the appropriation. The action of the county board is a public pledge to appropriate the money.

The action of the county board is further encouraging since the commissioners, when the plan was first adopted during the summer, agreed to appropriate $75,000 in money or convict labor, which meant mostly labor. Now the actual money will be available to do the work rapidly, and President J. H. Wilkinson, of the chamber of commerce, and others interested, believe that the prediction of Mayor Woodard that the work on the grounds and buildings can start by the first of January, will come true.

The county's part of the necessary money, to all intents and purposes, is now in hand.

The chamber of commerce is pledged to raise another $75,000, and this will be done by the end of the year.

The year's city council has recommended to the incoming council that it appropriate the third $75,000, and Mayor Woodard, one of the leading advocates of the fair plan, is authority for the statement that practically all of the 1915 members of council will vote to put that amount in the January appropriation bill.

Tell C. Waters, president of the board of county commissioners, President Wilkinson, of the chamber of commerce, Fred J. Paxon, president of the Atlanta Retail Merchants' association, and others assert that the fair is going to be the biggest and best thing of the kind ever attempted in this section of the land.

Even so, even says that the fair, which will be an annual event, will give the Cotton States exposition, all here in 1915. All speak in glowing terms of the educational plans for the fair, and the good which it will do toward freeing the Georgia farmers from the one-crop idea.

In pursuance of a resolution adopted by the house of representatives of the chamber of commerce last Thursday, Tell C. Waters, president of the chamber, has appointed a strong committee to give definite shape to the fair enterprise. On this committee the chamber, the city government and the county government are each well represented. The committee will be called together this week to work out the details preliminary to the launching of active work. The committee consists of the following:

Mayor James O. Woodward, President Tell C. Waters, Walter D. Cooper, ex-officio member; President James O. Woodward, chairman; President J. H. Wilkinson, vice chairman; H. B. Haining, Wilmer L. Moore, J. G. Miller, Brooks Morgan, John S. Coles, Morris Rich, L. J. Daniel, W. T. Smith, H. H. Krieger, Charles W. Smith, S. B. Turman, E. H. Inman, C. Kelley, David Woodward, Ivan E. Allen, A. V. Farrier.

"BUILD NOW" CAMPAIGN
WINS GENERAL FAVOR

Strong Committee Is Named to Arrange Details of Plans

The "build now" campaign launched by the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce has taken definite shape in the appointment to President Tell C. Waters of a strong committee with Victor Krieger as chairman.

The committee is composed of representative real estate men, loan agents, architects, builders and supply men. Chairman Krieger has called a meeting of the committee for 3 o'clock Monday afternoon at the chamber of commerce, and the meeting is expected to give strong impetus to the move, ment.

The committee is composed of the following:

Victor H. Krieger, chairman; S. B. Turman, Charles H. Black, W. T. Smith, Cliff C. Hatcher, Walker Dunson, James G. White, J. R. Smith, Charles C. L. Thrasher, Hal H. Hensley, C. Wachendorf, R. M. Walker, E. H. Inman, P. G. Hanning, A. W. B. Williamson, Paul Randall, A. Fisher, E. C. Callaway, Charles E. Kemp.

MRS. ARON D. KENDRICK
DIES AT SHARON, GA.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
SHARON, Ga., Dec. 12.—Mrs. Aron D. Kendrick died at her home here last night after an extended illness. She was survived by her husband and two sons, John M. Kendrick, of this city, and William L. ## The Rush of Christmas Trade Does Not Interfere With Our Drug and Prescription Departments

These two departments always are ready to quickly and efficiently fill your orders. You can depend upon us at all times, whether the rest of the store is busy or not, to take the most exacting care with that PRESCRIPTION.

We fully realize how much this PRESCRIPTION may mean toward the recovery of your health.

Our own corps of messengers quickly deliver the order to your home.

It matters not where you live, our boys probably pass your door every hour daily. Your order may be delivered at no extra cost to us. So look to us for all your drug wants, as we would like to be known as your "family druggist."

Charge accounts to all worthy persons.

—Red Cross Stamps are for sale at both stores without profit.

Give Him a Razor

AMERICAN MEN are coming more and more to shave themselves—principally because they like to depend on themselves—their own efforts.

Shaving oneself is a certain relief for that tired, languid feeling the tired business man sometimes has. It makes you fresh and chip as a daisy.

Speaking of shaving—Cone's for years has made a specialty of men's Safety Razors and shaving materials. We carry them all—soaps, creams, powders, lotions, astringents, talcum—and at prices that represent a real saving.

Overcoats for Men Who Are Men

We honestly do not believe that there is a store in the entire South that has a more attractive line of real overcoats, the kind that real men enjoy wearing, than this store has. We have them in blacks, grays, browns, striped, checked, and the various popular mixed colors. They are all made after the newest and most approved patterns, have the new belted backs, and combine the style qualities that are usually looked for in only the highest priced garments.

We are proud, immensely so, of our overcoat stock, and once you see them, and feel the comfortable fit of one, you'll be surprised at the prices for which they are selling.

---And Xmas Shopping at THE GLOBE

Christmas perplexities vanish in a House of Merchandise guided by honest endeavor, where one can find serviceable gifts of characteristic superiority, at lower prices, when compared with those to be found in other stores.

The Globe has always prided itself on the absolute confidence which its customers place in this store and this store's merchandise, and it is for the convenience, as well as for the information, of our large clientele that the extraordinarily large advertisement is published.

We believe that those who expect to give clothing or gifts for Xmas presents, cannot do better than come to The Globe for the purpose of making their selections.

Sanitary Dry Cleaning Co.

WHOSE PLANT IS LOCATED AT 24-26 Brotherton Street, Atlanta,

PHONES:
Bell M. 1802 Atlanta 353

IS ONE of the really up-to-the-minute, sanitary dry cleaning and dye works in the city of Atlanta, and the work done by this reliable old firm is of a high class, of a class that appeals to every man and woman, it matters not whether the garments that he or she sends be of medium grade or of the finest material and workmanship. To go through this plant is a revelation; it is fitted and equipped with the latest and best machinery for dry cleaning and dyeing, and the men and women who are employed to do the work of this plant are men and women who know their business; they have been in this particular business for years and years, and they are experienced dry cleaners and dyers. So when you send your garments to this plant or to any one of the firms in Atlanta who have their dry cleaning and dyeing done by this plant, you may rest assured that it will be done right.

We Do the Dry Cleaning and Dyeing for Many of Atlanta's Best Tailors And Pressing Clubs

THERE ARE many tailors and pressing clubs in the city who have no means for dry cleaning and dyeing garments that require this particular kind of work, and these firms send their work of this kind to us. We do it for them and send it back to them. There is no one who knows better than a good tailor how to press a garment just as it ought to be pressed, and all of the pressing clubs named below are experts in their line. But when it comes to DRY CLEANING and DYEING they know that we can do this better and in quicker time than any other dry cleaning and dyeing plant in the city, consequently they send their work to us. Now, it matters not to what pressing club or tailor you send your garments, if they need dry cleaning or pressing, just ask that they be sent to us for that particular work, and you will be assured of the right kind of a job.

Plumbing of the Right Sort

THERE is just one kind of plumbing that we do, and that kind is the RIGHT KIND. Modern sanitation and the right kind of plumbing go hand in hand, and wherever the first is found the other is demanded and must be had. We long ago recognized this demand, and we have for a long time realized the necessity of dealing fairly and honestly at all times with our patrons. SATISFACTORY SERVICE is our motto, and the guiding light of our workmen. We see to that. If this kind of service appeals to you, then consult us about your plumbing needs.

Coogler Tells How Wives Drive Their Husbands to Drink

Probation Officer Gives 10 Instances of Neglect on the Wife's Part

TEN ways by which wives drive their husbands to drink were explained last week by S. J. Coogler, of Atlanta, probation officer at police court.

First—Returning from their daily labors and finding their homes in dirty, untidy condition.

Second—Returning home and finding wife absent, no meal ready, no preparation made for his return.

Third—Continued nagging without cause, provocation or excuse.

Fourth—Continually quarreling with other members of family in presence of husband.

Fifth—Demanding things beyond the means of the husband and complaining constantly of his inability to furnish them.

Sixth—Indiscretion in the disposition of his earnings, spending same for unnecessary things and forcing him in debt for necessities.

Seventh—Incompatibility of disposition, making no effort to make the home cheerful, offering no companionship.

Eighth—Forcing company of the husband distasteful to him.

Ninth—Soliciting and permitting interference of relatives in strictly family affairs.

Tenth—Willful neglect of the children.

South Georgia Hunting Lodges

Rich Northerners Now Own Thousands of Acres Used As Hunting Preserves

TEN MILES from Thomasville is Spring Hill plantation, belonging to A. H. Hough, of Cleveland, O. This place is noted for quail and turkeys. Mr. Hough also leases the shooting over 4,000 additional acres. He has a comfortable lodge on his place.

One of the most noted sportsmen who spends the entire season at Thomasville is "Leo" Thompson of Redbank, N. J. Mr. Thompson bought several years ago, the hunting ranch "Sherwood" belonging to Judge H. W. Hopkins and owns about 4,000 acres additional in Georgia and Florida. He leases the shooting on about 15,000 acres and hunts quail, turkeys, deer, foxes, cats, etc.

Harry Whitney is Entertained

Mr. Thompson always entertains a large party of friends, among them every year being Harry Payne Whitney, of New York, whose uncle Colonel Oliver H. Payne owns Greenwood plantation, at Thomasville, one of the most beautiful winter homes in the south. One of Mr. Thompson's guests at present is Yale Delan, who has been coming south for the hunting for years and years, and is well known throughout South Georgia and Florida.

John F. Archbold of New York owns his handsome home, Chiquiqua Plantation, at Thomasville, comprising 3,000 acres, on which is much fine shooting for both quail and turkeys and leases additional acres for hunting purposes. He is the son of John D. Archbold, of Standard oil fame, who visits his son's Georgia hunting lodge every winter.

Edward Critzer, of Philadelphia, has a handsome winter home in Thomasville and leases the shooting on 20,000 acres in Georgia and Florida. He has a comfortable shooting lodge where he spends much time during the season. Henry Diston, of Philadelphia, who bought the Strawbridge home near Thomasville, and Harry Gruner, are at present his guests.

Stiney Hutchings, of Philadelphia owns about 10,000 acres in Georgia and across the line in Florida and leases about as much more for hunting purposes.

Chapin Leases 10,000 Acres

Charles Chapin, of New York, owns his country place "Elsona," about three miles from Thomasville, with 500 acres and leases 10,000 more. He is at present entertaining a party of English sportsmen.

Henry Diston, of Philadelphia, besides purchasing the handsome winter home, of the late Justus Strawbridge, has also bought 10,000 acres of fine shooting land where he will erect a lodge.

John Lester, of Atlanta, bought some months ago a large tract of several thousand acres near Lake Lanoka, much of it fine hunting land.

Judge H. W. Hopkins, of Thomasville, owns "Lake Carl" and the land adjoining it over the Florida line. This lake is a half mile long by a quarter width and is a great fishing place. There is also some fine shooting on the place.

M. Watson, of Thomasville, owns a ranch near town and keeps shooting dogs and a splendid pack of "Walker" hounds for fox and deer.

Game of all sorts is abundant throughout South Georgia this season, and every day parties of sportsmen may be seen going out in their hunting wagons with dogs and keepers. There are numbers of kennels of the hunting dogs that are brought down every fall, and many of the keepers are native born Scotchmen.

IS ATLANTA RUNNING AHEAD ON BOYS?

Howells Lauds Will Harben

"IN spite of their precarious financial condition, modern authors are doing good work, are they not?" a reporter recently asked William Dean Howells.

"Certainly they are," answered Mr. Howells, "the novelists especially. There is Will Harben, of Georgia, for example. His work is admirable. It has splendid realism and fine humor. Perhaps one thing that has kept it, so far, from an appreciation so general as it will one day receive, is that it deals, for the most part, with one special locality, a certain part of Georgia.

Mountaineers His Subject

This locality is north Georgia. Of the mountain people, Mr. Harben has written books which are masterpieces. But few in his own state know the worth of them. It requires such significant utterance as Mr. Howells to make plain the value of Will Harben.

Mr. Howells had been speaking of literature and the war, and he had said:

"I have never believed that great events produced great literature. They seldom call forth the great creative powers of man. In poetry, it is not the poems of occasion that endure, but the poems that have come into being independently, not as the result of momentous happenings."

Record for the Past Four Years Shows That the Boys Are Outnumbering the Girls. But the Year's Report of the Physicians Has Not Been Compiled

SUCH statistics for the last four years as doctors have furnished the city board of health, go to show that Atlanta is running slightly ahead on boys.

What this year will add to the record will not be known until the year is done; and the health office, in a matter-of-fact way, calculates our baby output, as it would a year's production of nails or carpet tacks.

Does Atlanta Prefer Boys?

But the indications are that again the number of boys will exceed the number of girls. It seems that Atlanta still prefers boys. The only exception in the last four years has been in 1911. Then, the number of girls born within the year was 83 greater than all the boys. But the other years have been different.

In 1913, the birth of 1,051 boys and 1,039 girls was reported to the board. In 1912, the report was, 919 boys and 837 girls. In 1911, 922 boys and 1,005 girls; in 1910, 902 boys and 881 girls.

Doctors' Reports Are Incomplete

These figures are not complete, because the reports of the doctors have been nothing if not incomplete. Ten years ago, practically no reports at all were being made, but this state of affairs gradually has been improved, with the result that nobody knows now how the birth-rate has increased. You can't tell whether more babies are being born or more doctors are reporting.

But at any rate, boys seem to be having things mostly their way. Still, 1914 is yet to be heard from, and perhaps it will show a change.

Rabbit's Foot Saved Him

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 12.—Ervin Pope, a negro, has entered upon a life term in prison after five convictions of murder in the first degree.

The crime was committed in 1909. The victim was J. B. McClurkin, a farmer of Calhoun county. On technical errors the supreme court reversed four verdicts, but confirmed the fifth verdict. Three times the governor respited the man and finally commuted his sentence to life imprisonment, giving as the chief ground for this action that blood-stained shoes found in Pope's house soon after the murder and used as state's evidence against him did not fit him.

His Death Sentence Read Eight Times

Although Pope heard his death sentence read eight times he never lost nerve or hope, but smiled each time and declared he would never be hanged, because he always wore suspended from his neck the left hind foot of a rabbit killed in a graveyard on a moonlight night of Friday, the 13th of the month. Frequently he fondled his rabbit's foot with the boast: "They'll never hang me so long as I wear this conjure; it will save me from the gallows no matter how many trials they put over." Even when witnesses reverse the erection of scaffolds for his execution he gazed smilingly and confidently on his rabbit's foot and declared: "Nothing doing for that structure."

Rooster Who Wages War on Dogs, Cats, and Boys of Grant Street

He Was Born in Cobb County and Was Brought to Atlanta for Pie Flavor

LOOK out," said a freckle-faced, scuffed little boy, "there's that dog-goned rooster, again."

Across the street rose a flurry of dust, three little boys scrambled to the top of a board fence, and a country-bred demitasse rooster galloped over, and brushed one wing against the fence as though to shake the little boys off.

This rooster has fought everything on Hunter street near Grant, except the cars. He doesn't belong to anyone in particular, and he roosts about impartially from house to house and eats at a grocery store in the neighborhood.

Early in the morning he walks into the store and picks out what suits his appetite and breakfasts on it. If someone not knowing his disposition offers to object, he squawks off, spreads out his wings, and gets ready to fight it out.

Hunts for Any Dog, Cat, or Boy to Fight

When he is through eating he strolls out to the sidewalk and walks up and down hunting for any dog, cat, boy, or adult that wishes to dispute his way. At times he gets out in the middle of the car track and seems half to make up his mind to contest the progress of the car.

But, discretion, up to now, has prevailed. He has stepped aside, cowered at the conductor, given his tail feathers a shake, and set out after any boys in sight.

This rooster started out in life to be no more offensive than any other sort of chicken. The story goes that he was raised somewhere up in Cobb county, and that he came to Atlanta to take his place in a pot pie and pass on into a feathered paradise.

But he escaped one fair morning from the housewife who was going to cook him along with dumplings and he made his way free and easy life on Hunter at Grant. It was then little boys in the neighborhood took to throwing rocks at him and spoiled his disposition.

Had Started in Life As a Placid Rooster

Up until that time he had been as placid as any rooster you could find, although his spirit was adventurous. But what individual of courage can remain untrifled in the face of such stoutheads?

He first took to chasing the offenders, and, from that he began to war on the world. He went to say of a vicious temperament, but in his veins flow many red corpuscles, and the call to battle stirs within him.

So, on the impulse of the moment, he rushes across the street, chases little boys to the top of fences, crows loudly, and returns to the neighborhood grocery store to eat anything he wants, and ask the grocer not a word.

How to Cut Off Little Dogs' Tails

The Ears and Tail Are Wrapped in Cobwebs and Buried to Keep Off Bad Luck

UNCLE ISRAEL JOHNSON is in the business of cutting off little dogs' ears, tails. With him it is a black art. Witness his operations last week.

A Decatur man brought to Uncle Israel a pup of a bull terrier, with floppy ears and a hobbled tail that was always waving and appeared to be broken in the middle.

"I want you to trim my dog up," Uncle Israel was told.

Must Lop 'Em By the Moon

Uncle Israel slowly shook his head. "Boss, you'll better wait till Tuesday. Dishere ain't no time for dawg loppin'. De moon ain't right. She's on de wane. Bad luck sho' bound ter folter dat dawg if you lop 'em now. 'W'en she gets sly-lie, we'll lop de dawg."

The Decatur man returned on Tuesday with the terrier. Uncle Israel was ready for him.

He looked at the moon, seized his axe, and proceeded to do the dirty work. This concluded, Uncle Israel wrapped up the tail and the scraps of ears in cobwebs. Then he rolled his eyes and spelt.

"Take de years and de tail and de cobwebs and dig er hole in de ground" behind yo' dawg house," commanded Uncle Israel. "Den bury de scraps. Dass sho' gwine keep off bad luck."

Uncle Israel's creed we have a reason why so many puppy dogs die each year.

Black Ruins in Wake of Armies in the North

Dogs Are Used to Haul the Machine Guns. Dynamite Ship Is Sunk as Safeguard. Daring Auto Drivers at Front

VITRY LE-FRANCOIS, Dec. 12.—Black ruins which have just ceased smoldering, houses whose interiors have been demolished by bursting shells, leaving only the skeletons of their structures standing, others with sides blown out, still others where on a chimney stacks remain erect—these are common sights in the tract of the armies fighting a short distance to the north.

Amid the desolation, in half sheltered houses, sit women and children and old men, uttering scarcely a word except about their husbands and fathers and sons away with the army, and from whom news is rare, if it comes at all. Lack of laborers makes it almost impossible for the villagers to start any repairs. Trade is at a standstill and the common articles of domestic necessity are difficult to obtain owing to the dislocation of transport.

Only a mile or two from Vitry the villages of Etrigny and Bourdonnais have been virtually disappeared, except for disorderly heaps of bricks, tiles and stones which a few weeks ago were houses. The fields are dotted with deep holes made by bursting German and French shells, while all about are small mounds showing the burial places of German and French soldiers interred where they fell. Even in the drainage ditches along the roads many graves were hastily made, and small crosses formed of two broken branches of trees placed over them, without name or number indicate the occupants.

Dead Covered Village Streets

The battle in Courdemaine lasted nearly three days before the Germans hurriedly departed through Vitry-le-Francois. In the streets of the village the ground was thickly covered with corpses which were later interred by the inhabitants.

Further away from Vitry is Norme, near Fere Campeuse. Norme, before the war, possessed about 100 houses. Now there are but 60, the rest having been blown to pieces or burned. The village passed from hand to hand several times during the German retreat to the Aisne. It is placed in a capital position for defense from any side, and the opposing forces fought desperately for its possession. In its single street 510 German bodies were picked up on one day, as well as about 100 French dead. Everywhere near the scene of furious combats and gunshots were scattered about. In the upper part of the barn of a farmhouse is a small opening where a shower of machine gun bullets was poured on the advancing French with awful effect.

How Dogs Hunt for the Wounded

PARIS, Dec. 12.—As a rule, each dog in the ambulance corps of the French army works over a corps of 200 to 400 dogs, and as no man is so keen as a wounded man he begins to bark and seek some articles that he can carry back as an indication to the ambulance.

For the same reason that the services of the dog have become necessary in finding the wounded, they have become useful, as demonstrated in the battle of Champagne, in the bringing up of machine guns.

The dogs are so trained that the soldiers are not obliged to accompany them in hauling the guns, they creep along under cover as they can to the desired position, leaving the dogs and the runs behind. When they have reached the desired location, all they have to do is whistle and the dogs come up with the machine guns and are scarcely noticeable to the enemy.

An affecting scene was reported from Belgium after the first fighting around Liege. A machine-gunner, a worthy emulor of "Patrasche," the dog of Flanders immortalized by "Ouida" (Louise de la Rampe) the English novelist, was wounded in the leg; at the same time a gunner was wounded in the face and after the battle they were seen returning. The soldier had the dog in his arms and the dog was affectionately licking the wound in his master's face.

"Prusco" is the name of a shepherd dog that belongs to an estate, who carries orders along the lines with a sidecar. "Prusco" sits alongside his master; whatever the pace and however rough may be the route, he cannot be shaken from his post. The estate received a bullet in his shoulder the other day and was unable to go on. He tucked the order which he was to bring back to headquarters under the dog's collar and finally persuaded him to start off with it. The dog delivered his message and then started back to find his master, accompanied by stretcher bearers, who brought him safely back to the lines.

Spy Sets Fire to 50 Tons of Dynamite

LONDON, Dec. 12.—Colombo Harbor, the principal seaport of Ceylon, and its shipping have been the target of destruction in the early days of the war, according to mail advices just received here. German spy set fire to an anchored vessel which contained more than fifty tons of dynamite. The only means of saving neighboring shipping and harbor works was to sink the burning ship, and this was done by a squad of volunteers at a considerable risk.

All mention of this incident was apparently deleted by the English censor in the cable news dispatches at the time.

Daring Exploits of the War Autos

PARIS, Dec. 12.—The exploits of the daring automobile drivers who whiz along the fringe of the shell-torn battle front, and sometimes into its missions of military duty that have cost many a life, are as remarkable as the aerial dashes in this war.

Thousands of luxurious touring cars and limousines that once graced the boulevards of Paris are now employed in this service as a part of the army. They are driven by their wealthy owners, who rank as private chauffeurs. They wear uniforms marked with an "A" on the arm. Little is heard of their individual deeds, which led the Figaro to say their service was "obscured."

In reply the Figaro printed on its first page a letter from one of these daring drivers, a Paris lawyer, that speaks for itself. It follows:

"Obscured! The word is quite said. There is too much obscured. And one has reason for being so who is forced to remain far from the front. Thus the automobile service is obscured. But the Figaro ought to say that in their obscurity the automobilists know how to die and that numerous, indeed, have been those who already have fallen."

"If, at the beginning of the war, one saw automobilists enjoying a ride in the woods or with their cars stationed before fashionable restaurants, that time has passed. That should be known."

"The automobile squad to which I belong is submitted to the most rigid discipline. We have three roll calls a day. We do not sleep at home. No one quits the garage during the hours of service."

"The other day, about nine in the morning the quartermaster entered the garage. Everyone was at his post. The machines were all equipped, tanks filled, provisions in the hampers, carbines ready—everything there to show that we don't just merely make a run around the lake."

"They want a car!" cried the quartermaster. "Who can go?"

"And R— went this time, like others before him, and as still others will follow him each day."

"In the evening the machine returned to the garage. All its windows were broken. Bullets had riddled its panels. Jean R— had been in this car, and the shells in his eyes, had brought the car back alone. Jean R— had seen killed during the trip. His body was on the ground back there, somewhere in the north. They had not been able to bring it back."

Chile To Be Our Winter Fruit Garden

WATERING THE PLANTS IN CHILE'S BIGGEST NURSERY

THRESHING BY ELECTRIC POWER AT SANTA INES

Completion of the Panama Canal May Furnish Us With Ripe Plums, Pears and Cherries in Heart of Winter

BY FRANK G. CARPENTER

Santiago, Chile.—How would you like to have luscious peaches at Christmas, ripe plums, pears and cherries in the heart of midwinter, and grow white muskmelons when the ground is covered with snow? This is what you may expect from Chile now that the Panama canal is completed and the war demand for American goods is turning our shipping that way. The vessels carrying our wares to Pacific South America will fruit cheap return freights, and the prospect is that in the near future many of them will come loaded with fruit.

From now on Valparaiso will be within two weeks of New York, and the canal has placed a South American California, with its summer products, almost at our doors. The prospect of a great exportation of Chilean fruit to the United States is agitating the farmers. The government is investigating the subject, and schools for teaching fruit growing and the packing and exportation of fruits are being established. Chile has long been the chief fruit-growing country of the lower half of our hemisphere. It already has orchards of hundreds of acres and its vineyards are yielding about 50,000,000 gallons of wine every year. There is no land upon earth that has better fruit possibilities and its products are now to be dropped upon Uncle Sam's tables.

Triumph Through Estate Owned By Salvador

But I can not give you a better idea of the possibilities of fruit raising in Chile than by taking you with Don Salvador over his great fruit estate. We start at the station in Santiago and within an hour have ridden out to the little station of Nos. Our way is through the central valley of Chile, and we see great farms and vineyards on both sides of the railroad. At Nos we leave the train and take the private car line owned by Don Salvador for the hacienda, which is a distance of five miles away. The car is pulled by a horse, but the Chilean driver makes the animal go at the gallop. We go over a road lined with poplars a hundred feet high, by great fields in which fat cattle are grazing, and within a short time are at the hacienda. The estate is surrounded by magnificent scenery. It lies on a plain at the foot of the mountains; sloping toward them just enough to give the fall required for the irrigation ditches. These are fed by a rushing stream, a pocho river, a rushing stream so large and swift that it not only irrigates the 1,000 acres of plants, but also furnishes the electric current that runs all the machinery. One of the canals turns a turbine that gives the estate 120 horsepower. This plant lights the hacienda and other buildings. It runs a sawmill and thrashers and moves the machines of a large fruit packing and canning establishment.

Trees Grow There With Great Rapidity

As we ride in we pass a thrashing machine which is moved by this plant. It was imported from America and is driven by us back to our farms at home. The grain is coming in from the fields in enormous quantities and is fed directly from the carts to the thrasher. As the barley passes forth it is caught in buckets made of skin hanging a bush-

Brand Whitlock Idol of the Suffering Belgians

Turkey Requires That German Be Taught In Schools—Alcoholic Liquors Forbidden in Provinces—Society to Aid Artists

BRUSSELS, Dec. 12.—Brand Whitlock, the American minister, is the court of last appeal by Belgians from the decision and orders of the German military administration.

Belgians can hardly speak to him without tears in their eyes. He has become one of the heroes of the country. They come to him with every variety of trouble, if there is sickness in their families, or if news has been received of death or injury to relatives at the front and in the thousand contentions that arise between individuals and some officer or non-commissioned member of the German army of occupation.

Mr. Whitlock's position with the German military people is also extraordinarily strong, even though they may prefer that he was not there. They seem never to have resented seriously his going to the markets at 5 or 6 o'clock in the morning and preventing German commissary people from taking all, or nearly all of the stocks of food. He is being actively supported by the Marquis de Villalobar, the Spanish minister, who used to be in Washington as minister, but as he is in delicate health, he is not able to do as much as he would like. Mr. Whitlock's health also seems to have suffered by his great responsibilities.

German Required In Turkish School

AMSTERDAM, Dec. 12.—A dispatch from Vienna states that the Turkish government has decided to make the study of German compulsory in all the state schools throughout the Ottoman empire.

AMSTERDAM, Dec. 12.—Germany has taken a leaf from the czar's book in declaring through an official government organ that the sale of all alcoholic liquors is strictly forbidden in the "eastern provinces."

The order came as the result of recommendations made by courts-martial which tried cases of desertion. In almost every instance the soldier declared that he acted under the influence of drink.

How Austria is Aiding Wounded

BUDAPEST, Dec. 12.—To ease those upon whom the horrors of war are first visited, the Austro-Hungarian empire is exerting every effort. Today the correspondent of the Standard has visited two of the principal military hospitals of Budapest.

A Russian soldier who was about to die, the correspondent needed to make the wounded comfortable and insure their recovery and physical well-being by being done. Whatever the advance in surgery and medicine has taught is being applied in these large establishments, one of which cares for over 1,000 and the other for over 1,500 wounded.

The inspection of the two hospitals was made under the auspices of Dr. Stefan Barczy, lord mayor of Budapest. Later the correspondent visited the American Red Cross hospital, an establishment able to house about 200 wounded and just now caring for about 180. A number of the wounded who had arrived from the Gallian front had been brought there.

At the American Red Cross hospital the Russian soldier lay on the operating table. The man groaned. Dr. Charles MacDonald, the United States Army stood at the head of the table and a nurse was patting the cheek of the Russian with a cloth of the table stained of fresh blood.

Elsewhere about the room stood four other American nurses and an Austrian orderly—all of them sad-faced, all of them expectant. The man on the table was about to die.

"He is a Russian soldier who was brought here just now," explained Dr. MacDonald. "No hope—both feet frozen—amputated—glanders look!"

Under the sheet had been hidden a truly terrible sight. The left leg of the unfortunate had been torn out above the knee; the right below the knee. Some Austro-Hungarian surgeon at the front had amputated both for the left at the ankle; the right a little above.

The man had been covered by a slight bullet wound in the fleshy part of the back, and as Dr. MacDonald said, would have recovered. The man had been given attention. But he had been left behind by his own and when the Austrians found him his lower limbs had been frozen.

"My children, my children," moaned the man, whose marvelous resistance against dissolution stood in strange contrast to the pallor of face and waste of body.

You will see them again," said the nurse. "Very interesting case," said Dr. MacDonald. "Sorry his vitality is so low. He has but a few seconds, however."

For a moment the groans of the man grew louder. His eyes roamed from one to another in mute but eloquent appeal for help—and the end—sudden, merciful. "Poor fellow," said the Austrian orderly, as he wheeled the body from the room. But there is a brighter side even to military hospitals. In other wards of the American Red Cross hospital the patients seemed happy enough. Most of them were eating their evening meal and many had progressed so rapidly that another portion of this or that was needed to appease their hunger. Elsewhere men were sitting on their beds, reading newspapers or reading the strolled convalescents.

But the hospitals have their bright side.

Luther Burbank, of South America

In order to give you some idea of what this great industry may do for the United States, I have spent a day with Don Salvador Iquintero S. in going over his fruit and nursery plantations, situated near the town of Nos and about twelve miles from Santiago, Don Salvador is the Chilean king of fruit. He is not only a grower of nursery stock, but is likewise a scientific breeder of new varieties. Together he has introduced into Chile more than 15,000,000 individual plants in the estate and he ships plants by the tens of thousands to all parts of Chile, and also across the Andes to Argentina, Uruguay and Brazil. ## Wrongful Assertion of Rights

Is the Assertion of One's Rights in Accordance With the Teachings of Christianity?

By Bishop Warren A. Candler

The disposition to an over-assertion of their rights is the infirmity which most easily besets people living under a republican form of government. This disposition is a prime folly with the American people. They think of their rights three or four times as often as they contemplate their duties, and with a hundred times more intensity.

But is the assertion of one's rights in accordance with the teachings of Christianity? Did Christ assert his rights or forego them?

A careful reading of our Lord's teaching will show that on no occasion did he ever concern himself for his rights. He ardently asserted the rights of others, insisting that men render what was due to all others from Caesar to God; but to the vindication of his own rights he seems never to have given so much as a thought. On one occasion when a Samaritan village refused him his rightful claim to hospitality and certain of his disciples wished to call down fire on the offending community, he rebuked them sharply and said, "The son of man is not come to destroy men's lives but to save them." (Luke IX:56). On another occasion, when they who collected the tribute money at Capernaum demanded payment by him and his disciples, he showed that he was lawfully and justly exempt, but said to Peter, "Notwithstanding, lest we should offend them, go thou to the sea, and cast a hook, and take up the fish that first cometh up; and when thou has opened his mouth, thou shalt find a piece of money: that take and give unto them for me and thee." (Matthew XVII:27). He preferred to endure an unjust exaction than to give offense to unworthy men even. Again when the soldiers came to arrest him in the Garden of Gethsemane, and Peter drew his sword to assert his Master's rights, the excited apostle was sternly bidden to put up his sword. Throughout our Lord's life in the flesh, he seemed never to have thought of his own rights and never to have forgotten the rights of others.

The Christian Way

St. Paul in his letter to the Philippians gives us to understand that such was the mind of the Son of God before the era of the Incarnation, in his persistent glory which he had with the Father from all eternity, and upon this amazing fact he bases an appeal to Christians to be of the same mind. "Have this mind in you, which was also in Christ Jesus, who existing in the form of God, counted not the being on an equality with God emptied himself, taking the form of a servant, being made in the likeness of men; and being found in fashion as a man, he humbled himself, becoming obedient even unto death, yea the death of the cross." (Philippians II:5-8). American Revised Version.) The whole movement of the Incarnation is one of the utmost self-abasement, and, if the Christian life is one in harmony with the Incarnation, it must be of like spirit and purpose.

A Christian may not without forfeiting his claim to the name of a Christian, put in the forefront the assertion of his rights. He must suffer wrong rather than do wrong. This was Christ's way.

And that which is true of individuals has its application to communities and nations. It is a crime against the race for any nation to assert its rights at the expense of all mankind. Such is the case with the dreadful war in Europe.

One of the belligerents has been taught to believe that it may pursue its aspirations at all costs; and that a "weak nation has not the same right to live as a powerful and vigorous nation." Hence Belgium is prostrated and half the world is aflame with an international conflagration such as the world never saw before and should never see again. The inflammable element which kindled the war is the defilement of so-called rights and the dethronement of the God of love.

Rights of the Nations

Discussing the international phase of the doctrine of rights, this writer of an able article which recently appeared in that excellent periodical, Christian Work, says: "Has a nation a right to plunge all Europe into hell, or even to make all the other peaceful nations suffer for all nations suffer, rashly from the war or even two simply to secure its own rights, even when it is recognized by all that the rights have been violated? Has any nation the right to go to war today without first consulting all the other nations and exhausting every existing means of securing justice when such a course inevitable means the ruin of thousands of uninterested and innocent people and the means of drawing of many other nations into the war? What Mr. Taft said at the dedication of the Pan-American Peace Palace at Washington must be applied to all nations. He said that to two nations at war, the American Continent had any right to go to war and disturb all the others, and that he hoped we would soon come that the nineteen nations would say to any other two considering war, 'You must stop.' It is

Geraldine Farrar Makes Her Debut In "Carmen," Which She Will Sing Here

"Sings It Better Than Anyone Since Calve," Says W. J. Henderson, of New York

GERALDINE FARRAR has made her debut in "Carmen," the principal opera to be produced here in May by the Metropolitan opera company.

"Miss Farrar sings it better than anyone else since Emma Calve," says W. J. Henderson, of the New York Sun. "Let it be said, at once," commented Musical America, "that our American prima donna sang the music certainly as well as any of her predecessors, and, in some respects, better."

And that which is true of individuals has its application to communities and nations. It is a crime against the race for any nation to assert its rights at the expense of all mankind. Such is the case with the dreadful war in Europe.

Large Crowd At Revival of Carmen

"The revival of 'Carmen' after a lapse of six years," says Musical America, "drew the best house of the season."

"Christy" had long been aroused as to what Miss Farrar would do with the role of Carmen, which has been assumed by many notable artists in the past, and which has been identified, more particularly, with Emma Calve, though there are many who would think Brechlerian gave a more artistic performance. Others have high praise for Maria Gay. As for the attempt made by Mary Garden, that is generally considered to have been a mistake.

"Old-timers remember a notable performance of the role by Minnie Hauk, who preceded all the others."

"It would be manifestly unfair to compare Miss Farrar's performance with that of any other artist, for the simple reason that in every case, and notably in the case of Mme. Calve, the American public saw an impersonation that had been slowly and carefully built up till it reached a high degree of excellence."

"We shall not, therefore, compare Miss Farrar's first effort with those of artists who had sung the role any number of times before they appeared here, and had, therefore, had ample opportunity to bring out of it all they could."

"However, let it be said, at once, that our American prima donna sang the music certainly as well as any of her predecessors, and, in some respects, better."

"In the next place, her impersonation, from the dramatic side, was distinctly individual. It was not modeled on any of the characterizations of her predecessors. She was perhaps too much inclined at times to be 'pert,' and thus perhaps to lack some of the seductive innocuousness which we associate with the character.

"If a suggestion may be permitted, it would be to the effect that Miss Farrar may, with advantage, give her impersonation a little more repose."

Only Calve Has Equaled Miss Farrar

"Not alone the Spanish character, but the gypsy character is not added to a great rapidly of movement, except, possibly, with the hands, when speaking. This we see in the Spanish dances, which are, in a sense Oriental, and, in a sense, partake of the Arab type, in that they begin with a certain swaying of the body, and so work up to a climax of abandon."

"Miss Farrar certainly gave a most dramatic, as well as intelligent and forceful presentation, in the tragic death scene. It was a more human, and, indeed, a more inteelligent portrayal than that of her predecessors."

Mr. Henderson, in the New York Sun, said: "Miss Farrar sings Carmen better than any one else since Emma Calve, whose strikingly convincing impersonation owed quite one-half its potency to the infinite wealth of expression in its vocal utterance. The music of the role lies well within the best range of Miss Farrar's voice. She has no temptation to emit strident high tones, and the great natural beauty of her medium soprano is shown perfectly."

Feathered Folk Protected By Bird Lovers

A GROUP of little children stood about a table in the old Joel Chandler Harris home in West End last week, awed by the mute presence of a number of stuffed birds before them.

"This," they were told, "is the cardinal, the crimson fellow with the top-knot who hops so brilliantly from bush to bush."

And the children went away talking in shrill, excited voices of plans for housing Robin Redbreast and his fellows of field and forest when spring wheels in again.

Such is the work of the John Burroughs club of Atlanta, a thriving little organization of bird lovers, who have banded themselves together to study nature in their own way and to do things for the birds and the animals.

Bird Homes on Peachtree Road

One of their members is Miss Sallie Brown, who lives on Peachtree road. She is a true bird woman. In her yard she has erected many little bird homes where the shy creepers have found they can nest without fear of stones or disturbance.

Here the green-crowned fly-catcher has found a box in a tall spire, lined it with grass and with snake-skins, and here he feeds the little fly-catchers with the green, Oh, joy—Oh, moral, bliss, THAT was a kiss."

Here, too, is a bird bath house. Each morning there is much splashing and shrill peeping from chickadees and outlaw sparrows who douse their feathers in the cool water and shake the drops into golden sunbursts.

In late summer the wood pewee sounds his plaintive note from the edge of the woods and, far deeper, the wood thrush chimes a mellow, golden requiem to the sun-set, like a far, thin horn of elfland.

But nowadays, the wood is stripped bare and gaunt, and what birds remain must flutter into the open for their food.

In bare-sweet spots in the brown yard they will almost peck at one's hand when a stale bit of bread is placed in the palm.

Another bird sanctuary is at the Women's Club. The Carolina Wren has found heart's haven here, together with many another bright-eyed, soft-winged fledgling to whom the John Burroughs Nature club of Atlanta has proved a friend indeed.

Federal Pen for Teacher of Soul Kiss

Frederick Nugent, Sentenced to Serve 18 Months Here, Called Prince of N. Y. Crooks

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—Frederick Nugent, whom we call the prince of crooks, is soon to begin an 18-months sentence in the Atlanta Federal penitentiary.

His chief swindle was the "Iridescent Order of the Iris," a concentration was the keynote, and the first thing the members did after concentrating was to pay Nugent $1 for a "lucky stone" that wholesaled at about $5 a gross. Then they came through with amounts varying between $12.50 and $13.50, according to what they could afford, and received in exchange any one of Nugent's nineteen "concentrations" invaluable. After that the "customer" was a full fledged Iris and could make the best of it.

When a man became enrolled in the order he was initiated into a secret greeting which ended like a college yell. As two members encountered each other on the public highway they were instructed to rub their eyebrows with their right thumbs. Then one exclaimed "Iris," to which the other replied "Iris." The first said "Dea," and the second came back with "Cent." Then both, in chorus exploded with "Iris." There they had it—"Irisescent." After that they went and had a drink.

Before, however, any one could be initiated into this tremendous ritual, he had to subscribe to a pledge. Here it is:

"I hereby pledge myself on all I hold most sacred to obey the rules and regulations, follow the teachings, and conduct myself as a loyal member of the Irisescent Order of Iris from this moment to the end of my earthly existence. Furthermore, I hereby express my entire satisfaction with all that I have learned about the order and may at any future time learn in regard to its teachings. And, finally, I accept as final all the dictates and mandates of the Inner Circle of the Supreme Lodge in so far as they have to do with this order."

Lectured At Occult School

Aside from the arduous duties of Supreme Ruler of the Irisescent Order of Iris, Nugent found time to lecture at the Occult School of Science, of which he was President, Extraordinary and Bwana Tumbo Penitentiary. At other times, under the name of John D'Astrea, he slipped into astrology, called the stars by their first names and got them to move a little to one side or the other into the nebulous future at so much a peer.

Under the name of Professor Frederick Le translated bumps on people's heads and by looking at a man's hand could tell whether he was going to marry the girl or not. In fact, Nugent, who employed three men and three women at his headquarters, No. 147 East One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, to look after the hundreds of letters, had no less than seven mail schemes, all of which he necessarily directed in, person, used to receive on an average two hundred letters a day. It is estimated by postoffice inspectors that he gathered in upwards of $30,000 during the past few years.

Nugent's studies of the "Mystical Eye," which would enable pupils of the Occult School of Science to learn the secrets of the occult, was tied by the flock, was his real undoing. He circulated this poem, addressed to a woman named Vesta, a mythical priestess, a member of the faculty of the Occult school:

Kiss of the Soul

"I sat anticipating, yet awed with that instant alert, drizzling, yet longing, for I know not what, while he, with a swift stillness that bespeaks the all-stirred within, lighted beside me, and with tender arms about me like a will o' the wisp, he drew me closely to his lovely breast, and he kissed me and kissed me in that loving way, all the magic thrills enthralled me, opened wide the doors of my soul, and I had in a delirium of ecstatic joy, been heaved and heaved like the hither of an ocean wave, roused from its breast, as if the wind had loosened their festive whirlwind again of life and death. Oh, love, Oh, joy—Oh, moral, bliss, THAT was a kiss."

If anybody thinks it didn't pay to when Iris he should take a glance at this "testimonial" found in Nugent's office:

"Thanks for sending my membership in the Iris stone and have made it into a breastpin to wear on my neck. I have been the possessor of the lucky stone I am engaged to be married. But when you think of me, I will be sure when my sweetheart showed me the stone and we exchanged the grips and the words, and he told me he had been a member of the order for two months, and that he proposed because he knew I would be a lucky woman. We are to be married in three months, and now I am happy."

From the testimonials which Nugent sent out almost anything could

COMMON SENSE in the HOME

EDITED by MARION HARLAND

A S COOKERY MAGAZINE

PREPARATIONS for the Christmas dinner involve enough work to make the housekeeper rejoice that certain of the mixing and compounding can be done some weeks ahead of time. Mince-meat is better if used long enough in advance to permit it to season and ripen before it is put into the Christmas cake, an essential in most southern and many northern houses, to say nothing of such Christmas candies as are best if made at the last moment. All that can be disposed of a number of days before the dinner is so much clear gain to the housekeeper and her helpers.

Most involved and tedious of all the culinary processes of the season is mince-meat. To be sure, it is simpler now than it was for our grandmothers, who had to seed raisins, wash currants, and chop meat and apples by hand as well as to mix the compound after the ingredients were ready. In these days when seed raisins and cleaned currants are in the market, when apples can be peeled by a machine and put through the chopper, when meat may be ground in the same engine, labor is appreciably lessened. Yet it is still necessary to seed citron by hand, to boil the beef before it may be minced, to give the raisins and raisins a little additional cleansing besides that they are declared to receive before they are added, as well as to stir and blend the component parts.

In view of all this, a good many housekeepers have simplified their efforts by buying a good make of canned mince-meat and "doctoring" it to meet the special tastes of their family. More and more, however, the raisins and raisins, and more liberal allowance of sugar are added, as well as a couple of glasses of brandy, a little larger proportion of sherry. What the canned mince-meat lacks is easily discerned and put with the time and toil saved by this means are well worth considering. Let me recommend it to you who find the Christmas rush approaching before your preparations are completed.

Should you prefer, however, to follow the old plan, let all the household take a share in peeling and chopping apples, in seeding raisins, shredding citron, and putting the mixture together. Depend upon it their enjoyment of the pie will not be lessened by the experience and labor involved in holiday goodies will be much enhanced.

MINCE MEAT.
Boil two pounds of lean beef, set it aside until cold, and chop fine. Powder a pound of butter, add a little flour to it if it shows a tendency to grow sticky and pasty. Peel five pounds of apples, core and chop fine. Pick over and cleanse one pound of raisins, wash currants and two pounds of cleaned currants. Shred fine three-quarters of a pound of citron and mix all these ingredients together, stir into them two tablespoons each of mace and cinnamon, one tablespoon each of cloves and allspice, one grated nutmeg, one tablespoon of salt, and two and a half pounds of brown sugar. Mingle all thoroughly and moisten with a cup of sherry and a pint of the best brandy. Pack down in a stone crock, cover closely, and leave the mince-meat to ripen for at least two weeks before it is used. Should it seem too dry at the last add more sherry and be sure that enough sugar is used and be sure that enough sugar is used.

This recipe for mince-meat I have given repeatedly. It is a family formula, and by it pie has been made by one generation of housekeepers after another for a hundred and fifty years. I have never tasted better mince pie than those compounded by this recipe. For the benefit of those who object to brandy and sherry in cookery I give the following directions:

CIDER MINCE-MEAT.
Peel, core, and chop five pounds of apples; boil and mince one pound of lean beef; powder half a pound of suet; mix raisins, currants, and citron with the seeded raisins, one pound of cleaned currants, and half a pound of raisins; add a quarter of a pound of citron, one tablespoon each of mace and cinnamon, mon, half a tablespoon each of allspice, cloves, and salt, and one and a half pounds of sugar. Last of all stir in the sherry. When the contents of the crock containing all the ingredients in a large pot of hot water. Set this at the side of the stove and bring the water to a boil, stirring the mince-meat up from the bottom several times, so that all parts of it may be heated equally. Remove the water in the outer vessel as it boils away, filling it up from the kettle, and keep up the steady cooking for five hours. Do this in the afternoon and leave the pot on the stove all night that it may cool gradually. When the contents of the crock are cool cover it and set it aside in the cellar or other cool place.

This mince-meat, like the other, should be made some days before it is to be used. Either variety of mince-meat will keep all good sized pie, and when the compound is kept tightly covered the moisture does not evaporate and leave the mince-meat dry.

PLAIN PUDDING.
Cream together one pound of butter and one of sugar; mix with them one pound of suet which has been freed from string, and mince and minced fine; beat smooth the yolks of twelve eggs and stir into the preceding ingredients; add a pint of milk and two and a half pounds of flour alternately with the whites of the twelve eggs, whipped stiff; a cup of brandy, half an ounce each of cloves and cinnamon, and two nutmegs, grated; last of all two pounds of seeded raisins, chopped and dredged with flour; two pounds of currants, picked over, cleaned, and dredged; quarter of a pound of citron, shredded fine and likewise rolled in flour. Mix all thoroughly, beating hard and put into a pudding cloth, wrung out in hot water and floured well on the inside, or in a buttered-pudding basin, with a floured cloth tied over the top, leaving room enough in either case for the pudding to swell in cooking. Boil the pudding for five hours.

If you choose you may divide the mixture and bake it in several small puddings, instead of one large one. These puddings will keep for a long time and may be heated for use in a steamer. They are best served with both a hard and a liquid sauce. The pudding that is left over when cold be cut into slices and fried in a little butter. You may recollect that when "good King Arthur" had left over plum pudding at the royal table.

"What they could not eat that night The queen next morning fried."

If little butter is used and the frying is done quickly the reheated dish need be no more ready to the digestion than it was in its original state. In any case it is meant for adults with gastric powers in good working order—not for children or invalids.

The above recipe will make a sufficiently liberal allowance of plum pudding to provide for a number of desserts of this kind. Should the housekeeper not wish to repeat the dish several times during the winter or to make Christmas presents of plum puddings to her family and friends she may have the proportions altered and still have enough to satisfy a good sized family.

For the benefit of those who wish to save themselves labor or who lack time, an expedient may be practiced in preparing plum pudding in that advised for sparing work in making mince-meat. The following may be trusted to bring a good result:

QUICK PLUM PUDDING.
Buy a pound of can plum pudding put up by a trustworthy house, turn the contents from the tin and powder them fine. Soak two cups of fine bread crumbs in milk, add a tablespoon of oil, a better a small cup of suet, removing strings and seeds, and a tablespoon of seeded citron. Mix all well, turn into a greased pudding mold and bake three hours.

Should the pudding be better warmed in a steamer, or it may be made and cooked the day it is to be used. In either case both a hard and a liquid sauce may be served with it.

MINCE-CAKE OR MINCE-PUDDING.
Cream one cup of butter and one and a half cups of powdered sugar; beat the yolks of six eggs and stir into the preceding ingredients; add a pint of milk and two and a half pounds of flour alternately with the whites of the twelve eggs, whipped stiff; a cup of brandy, half an ounce each of cloves and cinnamon, and two nutmegs, grated; last of all two pounds of seeded raisins, chopped and dredged with flour; two pounds of currants, picked over, cleaned, and dredged; quarter of a pound of citron, shredded fine and likewise rolled in flour. Mix all thoroughly, beating hard and put into a pudding cloth, wrung out in hot water and floured well on the inside, or in a buttered-pudding basin, with a floured cloth tied over the top, leaving room enough in either case for the pudding to swell in cooking. Boil the pudding for five hours.

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING HAND

I AM without sight and make my living by selling various articles. I will come to you for a new and good selling article for the Christmas trade? Please write through the Corner or address me personally.

C. M. W.
I think the plan for me to reply to your letter is to send you a copy of the book "The Christmas Trade" which I have written. It is a new and good selling article for the Christmas trade. Please write through the Corner or address me personally.

Wants Catholic Literature.
I saw in a recent issue that some kind friend had Catholic literature and magazines to give away. I am a Catholic and have three small children, with no church privileges at all. The children are a boy six years old, a girl of four, and another boy of two. I would like to have Catholic literature to read to my children and any reading matter for my husband and myself. We are very poor and my husband is unemployed only $4 a week. When the weather is much better he does not make even as much as $4 a week. I myself have been sick for three months with chills and fever. So you see we have no money to spend on reading. If I had any money to spare I would get a cow, for the children could almost live on the milk. Now we have to go to the store to buy, and groceries, and need all food, so as high. So if you can give our name to some one who will send us a few books I will be most grateful.

Mrs. W. A. H.
It strikes me that more than books is needed to make this home a cheerful one during the holidays and I wish it were as easy to send a cow to the family as it is to send a book. The writer, I don't doubt, would be glad to be put into communication with other readers of this magazine for the sake of a organization of methods which might help her and for the friends of endeavoring to help other mothers who are struggling with little families that will some day prove to be a comfort and delight to the parents. I am glad to give the address of Mrs. W. A. H. to any one who wishes to write to her. A view of sending reading matter, picture books, or anything else for the children, or to enter into a heartening correspondence, I think it is a heartening we feel an especial desire to scatter a little happiness about us into lovely or poverty stricken lives, and I know my Corner will be enough to be sure they will come to you as early as possible as it is presented to them.

British National Anthem.
The request by a correspondent for the words of the British national anthem, "God Save the King," has called forth many answers. Most of the versions given agree, although one correspondent states that the anthem was written in 1745 sends me that she says is a copy of the original hymn. This contains six stanzas, but she remarks that only two of them are now habitually sung. These are the two printed in this Corner last week. Several of the correspondents give the verse to which the anthem is usually referred in their inquiry. It is as follows:

O Lord our God arise:
Scatter them that hate us;
And make them fall:
Prune their stubborn roots;
That from the earth
And from the sea,
We may not hear them say:
"God save the King!"

This line of the verse which are generally omitted. There are several copies of the poem in my keeping after sending J. K. A. the copy for which he had asked. Should any of them be desired I will be glad to send a copy of the version on receipt of a stamp for postage. It has interested me very much to see what a full and prompt response has come to this inquiry. I wonder if as many English could supply the words of "The Star Spangled Banner" on command.

Trouble with Bread Baking.
To my mind the Helping Hand Corner is the best valued part of the whole paper, and it certainly is a real help. I have never asked a favor before, but I am sure I would be glad to take your suggestions from other housekeepers as to how to overcome the difficulties of which you speak. Several reasons may exist for the trouble. The bread may be coarse grained because you do not knead it enough. If it is not kneaded you let it rise too long. The third ring of bread usually takes place after it is baked and comforted and put in the pan. You speak in the postscript to your letter of the bread sometimes having a sourish taste. This may be because it rises too long and begins to sour. Try using the recipe you already have, working the dough thoroughly both for its first and second kneadings and not permitting it to rise to more than twice its original bulk at either raising. As I have said, the suggestions of other housekeepers for overcoming these difficulties will be welcomed. Thank you for the pleasant things you say about the Corner. I hope your faith in it may be fulfilled by your getting the assistance you wish.

Dill Pickles.
"I am sending you a recipe for dill pickles which I hope you will print in the Corner. I am one of your readers who is a washer. Wash thoroughly a peck of pickles of medium size. Soak them in salt water overnight. Use a cup of salt to a peck of pickles. Drain this water off. Add a measured quart of vinegar to enough water to cover your pickles when in the jar. Boil this vinegar and water for ten minutes. Pour this mixture into the jar, pour a piece of alum the size of a nickel. Leave it in the water for about ten minutes; place your pickles in the jar with a piece of fresh dill between the layers; pour the vinegar and water upon them and seal while hot. The alum keeps the pickles fresh and firm. J. P. H."

Although I had declared that the jar would have been used on beads, this note came as a sort of postscript to the former directions and for that reason I have admitted it.

Two Real Accomplishments.
"In a recent Corner was a most touching letter from an old lady whose initials are 'M. S. R.' She speaks of being ill in during the winter and needing a rug. If she has a rug, it makes no difference to me, as in any case I would feel great pleasure in writing to her. I have two real accomplishments—I can cook the queen's taste and I can write an interesting letter. Any letter which sends interest to the dear woman who spends her cold winter in a house—just in and all the pleasant details of a small home town will at least lighten a day or two for one so unfortunate and so afflicted. Your Helping Hand is one of the most cheering bits of the paper and I long to help all the poor souls who write. It is lucky we all have different things to offer, for the requests are divergent enough to tax even the unfailing bag of the Swiss Family Robinson!"

Two Ear Trumpets.
If you will send me the address of the two people who need ear trumpets I will send them each an old one of mine. B. L. L."

I wish it were possible to accept this generous offer, but the friend who makes it does not give the names of the two correspondents who asked for the ear trumpets, and it is out of the question to find out their names. I will, however, give the names of the correspondents who seek aid.

Wants an Abdominal Support.
I am a constant reader of the Helping Hand and it is about the most interesting paper I look for. I am an expectant mother and would so like to have the abdominal support which Mrs. G. L. E. has written. I would not only be willing to pay expenses, but I have some money which may like me and a number of friends to give away. I would be glad to help the Corner in any way I could.

Slumber Songs for Baby.
"Having seen a request for a lullaby some time ago I take great joy in sending forth the one my mother wisely used to sing to me: Hush-a-bye, baby, on the tree top, When the wind blows 'The cradle will rock, When the wind blows the cradle will rock, When the wind blows the cradle will rock, When the wind blows the cradle will rock. This is the old Mother Goose song, but it has been sweetly set to a cradle tune which I have heard young mothers sing to their babies. I am sure if the mother who is seeking a slumber song for her little one will look this up she will find it what she wants. As I recall it, it ran like this: Then rock-a-bye, hush-a-bye, on the tree top, When the wind blows 'The cradle will rock, When the wind blows the cradle will rock, When the wind blows the cradle will rock, When the wind blows the cradle will rock. The rest of it has gone from my memory."

Savannah No "Little Reno" Says Judge

SAVANNAH, Ga., Dec. 12.—Savannah has long been a haven for quick divorce, but Judge Walter G. Charlton has drawn the line now on Savannah becoming a "little Reno." When Cyrus McMurtry applied for a divorce from Sarah McMurtry yesterday and had no witness to substantiate his claim of desertion, Judge Charlton passed an order declaring a mistrial.

"I do not propose to have this court made a clearing house for divorces in the whole United States," he said.

Fourteen first verdicts were granted at the first session of the divorce term with four second verdicts. There are over one hundred divorce cases to be tried at this term.

Palmer Peas Poses as Newt Lee; Recorder Learns Something of the Lotus Eaters and Cocaine Alley

PALMER PEAS, who is the most original and persevering offender known to the police, has surpassed himself. Palmer has posed as Newt Lee.

"Honest Old Newt Lee," said Palmer, going from soft-hearted citizen to soft-hearted citizen. The tears of an honest man stood in Palmer's eyes, as he told his story, and there is no knowing just how many gave to him out of the fullness of their souls.

Newt was one of the chief witnesses at the Frank trial, and there was something in his manner that won popular approval. He suggested the ruggedness and honesty of some faithful beast of burden, and there was about him a humor that was kindly.

Even the lawyers softened their tone when they spoke to Newt, and the story of his naive answers to Mr. Rosser tickled everyone. Newt, in a humble way, was a sort of popular idol.

Palmer, in his surprisingly acute manner, realized this, and appealed to charity under the guise that he was old Newt and that the hand of want had been laid on him. The police learned of Palmer's newest trick, and he was rewarded with several months at the stockade.

Until last year Palmer had not been a "free Christmas" for a decade. The police are wondering whether there is any chance of his being out of jail on Christmas of this year.

Recorder Johnson is learning that the city directory gives only the obvious and superficial names of streets in Darktown. The little alleyways that lead off from Decatur, and wind and twist in other untidy parts of the city have titles that are dropped and to the point. They carry the atmosphere and character of the street.

It was while trying a case last week in police court that he first heard of Cocaine Alley and the Pickle Joint; and, since then, Hell's Half Acre, Kansas, Frog Hollow and Devil's Dip have become as old Saxon phrases to his ears.

Cocaine Alley is a haunt of Decatur street lotus eaters, just back of 240 Decatur, where police say the white drug goes from hand to hand and dreams are the substance of life. Nowhere else in the city is existence so vague and fanciful.

Hell's Half Acre is back of Fort and Scofield streets.

Frog Hollow is near the gas tank. And Devil's Dip is under the Washington street viaduct. Pickle Joint, in Decatur street arroyo, are delicatessen shops.

Before the desk sergeant's office at police station is a small cupped place in the wood made by many heels. It is the imprint of distress. Defendants from police court stand there as they pay fines, turn on their heels and help to grind the slight hollow deeper. Women bringing that old story of husbands gone, victims of foul play, they are sure, stand before the sergeant's window as they report to him; turn, and their heels press into the hollow. No spot in Atlanta is such a symbol of sorrow.

George Cornett is one man in Atlanta who remembers everything. For 20 years he has been member of the police force, and for a long, long time has been attached to the police court. Hundreds are tried there weekly, but he seems to remember almost every face. Recorder Johnson has no need of a docket to remind him. He just asks Cornett.

"Is this an old offender?" he questions; and Cornett eyes the man. For a moment he pauses as though his finger on this particular man, and his answer is definite and decisive.

If the prisoner is well used to police court ways, George Cornett knows when he was tried, of what he was accused, what manner of person he is, and whether the recorder should greet him with mercy.

Wedding Lasts Two Days At Columbus

COLUMBUS, Ga., Dec. 12.—Nearly one thousand Gypsies, headed by the king of the Gypsies in North America, have reached this vicinity and have gathered in big camps over the Alabama side of the Chattahoochee river for one of the big events of the year—a wedding ceremony—which, according to one of the number is to last two days. The ceremony commenced last night, the king presiding, the first performance, lasting over an hour. Other ceremonies are being gone through with today, and it is announced that the young couple, one of the most "prominent" in the tribe, will be formally declared, or pronounced, husband and wife Monday. On this date the names will be announced.

The proceedings and the great throng of travelers, have attracted widespread attention. Many Columbus people and others have gone to the big tent today in efforts to learn something of the long-drawn-out wedding ceremony.

"No, I must have the food and drink before I talk."
Thereupon the dame slammed the door with the tart remark:
"You're not a merry minstrel, you're only an after-dinner speaker."

No One Marries Now in Dalton Who is Not Ninety

DALTON, Ga.—This Georgia town is rapidly winning the title of Cupid's Haven, a Cupid, moreover, that rather ignores the younger set, and draws a steady lead on graveyards and grandmothers. The fallacy about this being the young man's day has been shattered to smithereens, and it is reported on good authority that the eyes of anti-diluvians the nation over are focusing their near-sighted glasses on Whitefield county.

Within the past fortnight, four men of Dalton, whose combined ages are more than 360 years, have taken unto themselves wives. There has been a regular epidemic of marriage among the old and infirm; it has swept the county.

Cupid's attack on Age began with Followed L. B. White, aged 52 years, who married Miss Bessie Lina, who was only nineteen.

And positively refusing to draw the color line—Dalton's Cupid then engineered the marriage of "Uncle Doc" Phinizy, an old ante-bellum dandy, to Adeline Phelps, an eighteen-year-old "high-brown."

And of all the old people, "Uncle Bob" the man who started the thing, is the only one who has had any ty

Shooting At Target, Kills Mule Two Miles Away

DALTON, Ga.—A stray bullet winging its way over the Georgia hills went two miles to find a mark and then hit the unfortunate animal in a suit of damages.

The story came to light here last week in the superior court suit of A. J. Lance versus M. L. Ritchie, based on the allegation that the latter neglected to pick out a safe place for target practice.

This is the story the suit tells: The junior member of the Lance family, quietly riding his mule along a country road in the twilight time, dreaming of supper and kindred subjects, was rudely awakened by his meditations by being pitched ten feet over his steed's head.

Another Indictment.
The English gardener had tried to sell bulbs and been defeated, the customer alleging that this was not a time for buying daffodils and hyacinths.

"Ah!" said the gardener, in the blinding moment of defeat, "this war's playing the game with everything. No edge cuttin', no new lawns, and I got to go sellin' last year's bulbs to my customers. He's a lot to answer, for, has that Kaiser!"

The boy picked himself out of the dirt and hit the mule a terrific blow with his hand. To his horror, he then discovered the animal was dead. A bullet had driven clean through his skull.

Then followed some sleuth work. No shot had been heard by the youth on the mule, but the bullet hole through the head was unmistakable evidence of the cause of death. Lance discovered that Ritchie was doing a little target practice that same day, and though Ritchie was two miles away from the scene of the tragedy, he believed it was a bullet from his big caliber army rifle that killed the mule.

Ritchie has asked the court to give him a verdict of $250.

Convicted.

The editor turned in the copy to the office boy the last thing before going to press, then hurried to the train to be gone two days. When the paper was printed the article was headed "Gunn Smith" and went on to say that the bride was arrayed in a dress of "white mule" instead of white and she carried a large "nose." The editor wrote that the groom was a well liked son of A. Gunn, and the boy set it up. "The groom is a well-eyed son of a gun." # BLEET BY ANDERSON REED W. WOODEN 5 YEARS IS REMOVED

Hit By Minnie Ball At Battle of Knoxville. Bullet Removed the Other Day

ANDERSON REED, of Cobb county, was wounded in 1863 at the battle of Knoxville by a minnie ball. The other day, fifty-one years after he received his wound, this ball was removed by an operation on his side. The bullet weighed one ounce.

When he was twenty years old, Mr. Reed enlisted in the "Roswell Guards," which were commanded by Captain Tom King. The Guards were early in the field, and participated in the First Battle of Manassas and subsequent battles of the Virginia campaign. At the battle of Hazen's Mill near Knoxville, Mr. Reed was taken from the battlefield exhausted by loss of blood. He had been wounded three times, once in the arm, once in the leg, and the third time by a bullet which passed through his right lung and lodged against his shoulder blade.

By this last wound he has been troubled for fifty-one years. Five years ago an acute attack of illness led to an X-ray examination at Atlanta, with a view to removing the bullet. On this examination the bullet was visible, but on the third day afterward, when doctors went to operate, the ball had moved and could not be found.

Recently, an abscess formed in Mr. Reed's side, and in dressing it, the bullet was felt. Dr. Perkins, of Marietta, who was attending physician, opened the abscess and the bullet was removed.

History of Atlanta's Courts; First Bank Opened in 1847

Story of Painter Smith, Atlanta's Rip Van Winkle--Opening of Fair, away Back in 1851, When the Population Was 6,000

By Gordon Noel Hurtel

On the 20th day of December, 1853, a part of DeKalb county was made into a new county and named Fulton. In 1869 the Atlanta circuit was formed of Fulton, Clayton and DeKalb counties. Later Fulton alone became the Atlanta circuit.

The following judges, excepting those now in office, have served on the superior court of DeKalb county: John S. Candler, John H. Hopkins, Cincinnati Peoples, George W. R. Hammond, Marshall J. Clarke, J. H. Lupton. In the second, or criminal division of the court, the judges have been Richard H. Clark and John S. Candler. In 1869 the old city court of Atlanta. The present city court was established in 1871 and the following served as judges: Robert J. Cowart, Samuel Lawrence, Richard H. Clark, R. T. Dorney, Marshall J. Clarke, Howard Van Epps.

The criminal court of Atlanta was established in 1851, and the judges have been: Thomas P. Westmoreland and John D. Berry.

In 1854 the court of ordinary came into existence and those who have acted as judges are: Joseph H. Meade, Robert E. Mangum, Daniel Pittman, W. L. Calhoun, Wm. H. Hulsey.

There was once an interior court with three judges, which was the same nearly as the present municipal court. It existed from 1804 to 1863 with the following judges: Julius A. Hayden, Stephen Terry, C. H. Strong, Samuel Walker, James Denehoff, Clark Howell, S. C. Elam, A. A. Rice, C. R. Hanftler, J. W. Manniss, S. K. Pace, W. A. Wilson, E. M. Tallaferr, P. Owens, Perno Brown, J. A. Simmons, C. M. Payne, C. Green, D. P. Ferguson and William Watkins.

The first Fulton county officers were: J. H. Ward, ordinary; Jonas S. Smith, sheriff; T. J. Perkins, deputy sheriff; B. F. Bonar, clerk superior court; C. M. Payne, clerk inferior court; R. M. Clarke, treasurer; James Bartlett, surveyor; J. K. Landers, coroner. They were elected on February 23, 1853.

While Atlanta, a great city, is boasting today of its big and ever-increasing bank clearances, it may be of some interest to recall the time when the city first began to put on "financial airs."

The first bank began on a small scale and was operated by the agent of the Georgia Building company, John P. Mims, in the year 1847. The bank was in the railroad depot. In 1848 Messrs. Scott, Carhart & Co. bankers came to the city, established a banking agency in the city, with U. L. Wright as manager, and J. W. Houston as cashier. The first depositor was J. B. Lofton who carried his money into the bank in a pair of saddlebags.

In 1852 the Bank of Atlanta was established with S. B. Higginson as president, and J. R. Valentine as cashier.

The Georgia railroad increased its banking activities in 1854 and made Perine Brown agent.

The Bank of Fulton was established in 1855, with A. W. Stone president, and William M. Williams cashier. This bank was bought by E. W. Holland and Alfred Brown in 1857.

The Atlanta Insurance and Banking company began business in 1859 with John W. Duncan, president, and Perine Brown, cashier.

An agency of the Central Railroad and Banking company of Savannah, was established in Atlanta in 1859, with Adam Jones as agent.

John H. James began the banking business in 1860.

The first national bank of Atlanta was the Atlanta National Bank, which was

Her Rip Van Winkle

Atlanta's Rip Van Winkle was known as Painter Smith and he flourished when the city was Martha's Vineyard, somewhere back in 1845 to 1848. The only difference between him and Washington Irving's "Rip Van Winkle" was that he did not sleep twenty years and awake. When Painter Smith awoke he did not awake and the grass has been growing over his grave for sixty years or more.

He lived in the town, always pretending to have a job but never working. The children played pranks upon him, and he was so fat and so fatigued and the men laughed at him and only pitied him for his frequent visits to the grogshop. He was so fat and so fatigued and the men laughing at him and only pitied him for his frequent visits to the grogshop.

He was "swearing off" and ever taking a drink and saying "I'll not count this one. He always drank a glass of whiskey and was so fat and so fatigued and the men laughing at him and only pitied him for his frequent visits to the grogshop.

"Here," he said, "my health and may the devil and yourself never make friends."

Painter wandered about the city, mending and washing. He had a goodly store of jokes and sang many wild and uncanny songs. He never failed to attract an audience when he was in a humor to talk or sing.

The reminiscences of Atlanta are never more over the old times, even until this day, without the name of Painter Smith being mentioned.

Opening of First Fair

The pioneers of Atlanta began to put on airs and manifest the "Atlanta Spirit" was back in 1851, when there was, a fair over the city. It was held on a fair! It was not a very pretentious exposition, but it was a fair to have been a good show. It was held on the lot now occupied by the Fair Street school. In fact Fair street, which was then a country road, was so named because of the "fair grounds."

In 1855 the fast growing city decided to put on more of a show by getting the annual fair given by the State Agricultural society. Mayor John Glenn appointed Councilmen W. Barnes and C. Powell and Citizens I. O. McDaniel, Aaron Gage, J. A. Hyden, T. B. Daniel, F. B. Trout, William Starkham and Jonathan Norcross as a committee to "go after the state fair and get it." And they did. The city offered the use of lots of ground, and appropriated $5,000 for improvements.

Old timers talk about that fair until this day, for there are still a few left living who went to the fair. They say that there were fine exhibits, good side-shows and plenty of fun.

So many people came to the city to attend the fair that the mayor felt called upon to appoint more extra policemen.

During the fair week a grand sacred concert was held each evening in the old city hall which was located on the present site of the state capital.

So there were "things doing" long years ago in the Gate City. And even when the town was in its swaddling clothes. The Atlanta Spirit was born when Engineer Stephen H. Long in 1837 brought a bear in from the west and the old union depot now stands, to mark the terminus of the Western and Atlantic railroad.

Children At Open Air School Gain From 3 to 10 Pounds

Open-Air Pupils

TESTS were made last week of the children in the open-air classes of the Atlanta Normal school in West End.

These tests showed the children have averaged an increase of over three pounds in weight, and that some have gained as much as 10 pounds.

Equally as significant has been the absence of fatigue, nervousness, and irritability in the open-air classes.

"This has been remarkable," says Miss Mary W. Postell, principal of the school, "because some of these children previously had given a great deal of trouble."

The last three months have proved that open-air schools are needed throughout Atlanta, and are the means of solving the most important school problems.

Some instances of extraordinary physical improvement have been noticed, and in every instance the open-air children have benefited.

Record of Open-Air School By Mary W. Postell, Principal

When the open-air classes at the Atlanta Normal school in West End were begun in September, it was decided to keep comparative records of open-air and of indoor classes. This was to prove the efficiency of open-air schools.

Cards were provided to show the attendance, weight, and general physical condition of the children, and, since school began, these cards have been filled out once a week. Another card is filled out by parents at the beginning and at the end of the term.

The following questions were asked when children entered the open-air class:

"What has been the general condition of your child's health up to the present?"

"Has he any weakness that you know of?"

"If so, what?"

"What illness has he had?"

"Is he subject to colds?"

"Is his appetite good?"

"Does he sleep soundly?"

The following questions are asked later:

"Has there been any improvement in your child?"

"If so, in what respects?"

"To what do you attribute this improvement, if any?"

"What is your opinion of the open-air school?"

In addition to the cards, the teachers watch for signs of restlessness, fatigue, headache, etc. They notice the character and amount of the child's work.

Of course it is rather early in the year to draw exact comparisons, but some general statements may be made. We know that much of the fatigue and weariness of school children is caused by vitiated air. Some recent investigations tend to show, also, that even pure, warm air causes more injurious effects than cold air.

Heated Air In-Doors Is Often Impure

In buildings such as our main building where our indoor classes are taught, the heated air that is forced into the rooms by fans may or may not be pure. When the fans are running the air can be kept in circulation; but when the fans are not running, it is impossible to ventilate properly. Windows on but one side of a school room do not give sufficient fresh air, and the air in these rooms is frequently foul.

This condition of the atmosphere causes restlessness, inattention, irritability, etc. It is hard to get children to concentrate on the work in hand, and there are frequent requests to leave the room. The air in the open-air classes is absolutely pure, and the effect of this is very evident.

In September we tried to divide the groups as evenly as possible. All who made requests for the open-air school were placed there. Several of the children, whose parents requested them to be placed in the open air, are the sturdiest sort of children who have at any time been in the school, and who have never been in indoor classes.

For a while it seemed that we would start out with the best physical specimens in the out-door classes; but we have since put many of our weak, enemic

WHAT VETERANS AT THE SOLDIERS HOME THINK OF THE EUROPEAN WAR

Of Course It's a War but Not Compared with Fighting of the Sixties

IT was half an hour until dinner at the Soldiers' Home.

"Do you think—" I asked.

"A small man rubbed one hand over his chin. "Twelve o'clock about," he suggested hopefully.

But a stoutish one sighed and shook his head.

"Think what?" asked a sandy-haired man.

"That the war in Europe—"

A negro rolled a crate of cabbage rumbling through the front door. He could have gone as well through the back. By the nose of every veteran gathered in bunches round the steam radiators in the hall, he pushed his leafy cargo. The large man by our radiator growled.

"Cabbage!"

"It was an echo of every heart. Even the back teeth of the nigger gleamed as the crate disappeared, and the groups shivered.

He trundles all undesirable foods down the hall to see the discomfiture of the veterans.

"Do you think—" I asked.

Rather Fight Yankees Than Eat Cabbages

"I'd rather fight ten yankees than eat one cabbage," said the smallest man.

"Do—"

"You think that the European war is as hard fighting as our civil war," I finished.

"Certainly not," he answered. And all the group drew closer.

In summer they would be on the porch of the Soldiers' Home. In winter they divide among the steam radiators in the hallway. Every one knew stern fighting in the sixties.

"In the first place your paper has exaggerated. They don't kill as much as we did. They don't fight as hard, and it isn't as cold as we saw. Now—"

"A pretty cold," ventured a mild-mannered man with a gesture. Then, without further of such disdain.

"You were in West Virginia, weren't you?" You slept in the snow with no blankets. You had little to eat? Cold—they don't know the word. Every man in Europe's been cold. None of us were cold. Jackson could have frozen out every brigade over there.

He stopped to get his breath, and another in the group waiting for the opportunity, took his place.

Flames Swept Over Wounded On Field

"My name is T. V. Mullinax. A dozen people, Atlanta can vouch for me. In the fighting at Green Bay, Missouri, in the year 1862, 429 of us were lost and for seven days had not a crumb. We found in the morning the shack of an old man named Parsons, and he gave us what he had in the way of food, and led us to the front lines. I remember we cut our way through the laurel with Joe Brown knives. That's how we got through."

"My name," added a third, "a stout man, with firm, jolly face, "is

Woman, 150 Years Old, is Dead

HAVANA, Dec. 12.—Catalina Allanza, 150 years old, died yesterday at the hands of a doctor. She was older than gray old Cabana fortress; older than our United States or the Declaration of Independence. Catalina, a civil killer when Napoleon was born, and was an old woman at the battle of Waterloo.

Born a slave, of slave parents on the estate of the great Puidio family of the province of Havana, Catalina never saw the capital until a few days ago, when she was brought here to die of fear, after living 150 years.

There are aged negroes now living in the town of Guira de Melena, who tell that she lost her mind in a scene of horror at the beginning of the ten years war in 1865. When she was a young girl, a large number suspected of revolutionary sympathies on the Elialede estate.

The old woman, reputed even to be 100 years old, was harmless, but, though she lived, she was kept as a superannuated pensioner by the Puidio family after the abolition of slavery. During the war of independence, Elialede was burned in 1896 by Maximino Gomez because he refused to continue to be a slave. He ordered all mills to shut down that the Spaniards might be deprived of the revenue derived from sugar exportation. The fire which destroyed the cane fields also reduced the mill, residence and field hands' quarters to ashes.

With the destruction of Elialede old Catalina disappeared and was supposed to have perished in the flames.

In the ensuing years the lands of Elialede were saved for the family by the Puidio family after the abolition of slavery. During the war of independence, Elialede was burned in 1896 by Maximino Gomez because he refused to continue to be a slave. He ordered all mills to shut down that the Spaniards might be deprived of the revenue derived from sugar exportation. The fire which destroyed the cane fields also reduced the mill, residence and field hands' quarters to ashes.

Wooden Cross In Cave Where She Lived

In the cave where she had dwelt for the last eighteen years the only human habitation were a rude wooden cross, presumably fashioned by her own hands, and a few feathers, bones and pebbles, such as are used as charms by the "magical sores" (voodooes), arranged upon a "black" block of limestone, which probably served as a table. On the floor were fragments of the woody bark of the cassava and manioc, roots which grow, presumably for food; bits of sweet potato and sugarcane, eggshells and small bones of the dead and part of a human skin of an iguana, the large edible lizard of Cuba.

There was a broken gourd which may have served her for a drinking cup and a piece of a machete blade, of a fire ever having been used, such as fertilizer is shipped in, in which she had made holes for her head and arms. There was no sign of a fire, from which it is deduced that she ate raw the roots which she dug at night from the soil. There were patches round about, and the eggs which she stole from nests under the hedge—eaten on her. On the fare with such insects and lizards as she might have the fortune to catch,

Belgian General Like Civil War Leader

HAVRE, Dec. 12.—A quick command from General Bertrand at Haecht turned a retreat of the Belgian forces into an attack in much the same manner as General Sheridan turned the Union forces at the battle of Winchester in the civil war. The story is printed in the Courier de l'Armees, the official Belgian military paper.

General Bertrand, who succeeded General Leman in command of the iron division which opposed the Germans at Liege, suddenly found his troops in retreat.

"Friends," he shouted, "you've mistaken the road; the enemy are in the other direction!"

Electrified by their leader's words the soldiers wheeled about and charged the German troops with renewed vigor.

On another occasion, the general is declared to have stopped an attack of two Belgian companies upon each other by rushing between their lines and slaying a popular dandy, who he heard the general's voice the soldiers did not realize that they were firing on their own countrymen.

The general is 57 years old. He was a second lieutenant at 20 years, and became a major-general last March.
